Morrow and Young.
Wealth and Democracy.
Violet Ray Fights Disease.
Apples and Oranges.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NEW YORKERS, with money, and leisure to settle the affairs of the nation, say the Republican candidates for President will be Mr. Morrow, recently ambassador to Mexico, and the Democratic candidate, Mr. Young, financial genius, father of the Young plan for Germany.

BY some it is suggested that both are "too close to big money." Mr. Morrow being a former Morgan partner, and Mr. Young head of various great corporations.

THAT objection is feeble. In military nations, military men are chosen to lead. In this business-money nation and government, business-money men might well be chosen.

But the Morrow and Young enthusiasts overlook President Hoover and Gov. Smith.

PRESIDENT HOOVER will emerge from the cloud of bootleg-prohibition discussion that now obscures him, and prove that the people did not elect a great engineer to deal only with petty crime.

AND whoever believes that the Democrats can overlook Governor Smith in a national convention, overlook the meaning of 15,000,000 votes. Governor Smith can accumulate the 15,000,000 again. Who else, among Democrats, could gather them?.

CALVIN COOLIDGE says our democracy has shown ability to take care of itself.

It might be more accurately said that our plutocracy has proved its ability to take care of our democracy, giving it steady work, and as good wages as democracy can reasonably expect.

MR. COOLIDGE is satisfied with the distribution of wealth. Small fortunes are handed on, big fortunes tend to scatter for charitable purposes. The nation is worth three hundred billions, according to Mr. Coolidge and its annual income is ninety billions. He says we have "a fringe of idle, vicious, boisterous wastrels." But on the whole, there is nothing to worry us.

MR. COOLIDGE underestimates America's wealth. It is not limited to what we get out of the ground, mines and factories.

Texas alone has potential wealth greater than three hundred billions.

Mr. Coolidge's own wise course, after the war, letting the country get its breath, and saving his own, was worth several billions.

DR. LUCAS, one of the many able scientists employed by the telephone company, has perfected a "violet ray" microscope, expected to work wonders in the fight against disease, specifically in treatment of cancer and other malignant tumors.

A violet ray machine, using 10,000 volts, magnifies to an extent absolutely amazing, making the specimen examined "seem to jump through the lens."

NO work means more to science and progress than that done in laboratories of great industrial corporations, Telephone, Steel, General Electric, Standard Oil and others. They give to their scientists money unlimited and complete discretion in their work. The results are admirable.

FOLLOWING a typhoid epidemic at Oviedo, in Spain, drinking fountains were closed and people ordered to drink only cider. In a week the epidemic vanished. Spaniards believe that apple juice kills disease germs.

PERHAPS cutting off a bad water supply had more to do with it. But every human being would be the better for an apple a day at noon and an orange in the morning.

SOME one should make a little cider press that could be used at the family table, to squeeze out the cider and give it to children with their noon meal fresh from the apples.

Why not let everybody, corporations included, say what they want to say, according to constitutional provision, assuming that more important matters are not crowded from the ether.

THE people are not fools, are able to recognize sincerity, and need not tune in, unless they choose. The wise course with the honest and the dishonest, is to let them talk.

IN much talking, there is much self revelation. The stout man at the London aldermen's dinner looked wise and important, until the boiled potatoes came on. Then said he, "them's the jockeys for me," and everybody knew he had never been to Oxford.

IF you have a darling pet parrot, do not bury your nose or mouth in its pretty feathers, or stroke the parrot and afterward put your hand to your mouth Surgeon General Cumming, of the National Health Board, says parrots are bringing into the country a highly dangerous dis-

DAVIS DENIES QUITTING RACE

Governorship Up to People; Doesn't Expect to Remain In Cabinet After January

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—"If I decide to become a candidate for the governorship, it will be because I believe I can be nominated and elected," Secretary of Labor James J. Davis was quoted here as saying, before leaving today for Washington.

Secretary Davis said a report from Washington that he would remain in the cabinet for the full term because the outlook for any gubernatorial aspirations was discouraging, was "absolutely unwarranted."

"I have not talked with W. L. Mellon about running for governor, nor with Gov. Fisher, State Chairman Martin, Senator Grundy or Mr. Vare," he added. "If I go into the fight I'll go straight to the people of Pennsylvania."

TO LEAVE CABINET

Mr. Davis indicated that he did not expect to remain in the cabinet beyond next January.

As he wass leaving Pottstown, Pa., where he addressed the Chamber of Commerce, last night, Secretary Davis said a committee of 15 prominent citizens urged him to enter the contest for the governorship and offered to run his campaign in Montgomery County. He said he thanked the committee and told them he would think it over.

"I'll be sure that the people as a whole will want my type as a governor before I take the plunge," the Secretary was quoted. "If they want the fellow who wears a long tailed coat, a plug hat, who has a mustache trained at high angles and twirls a cane, then I'm not the type," he said.

SLAP AT 'BOSSES'

Switching to the political situation in Pennsylvania, Secretary Davis said: "It i almost unbelievable to think that a group of politicians in this state have an unwritten law to the effect that a man who is allied with the labor cause, or who belongs to a trade union, cannot be elected to the governorship. It is fortunate, however, that many, many thousands of citizens in all parts of the state do not agree with them."

Asked if he had made any plans in the event he decided to seek the nomination for governor, Mr. Davis said his petitions would be filed in every county in the state if he took the step.

Warrant Issued for Parole Violator

A bench warrant was issued by Federal Judge Nelson McVicar today for the arrest of Mrs. Bertha Mills, 25, who pleaded one year ago to selling liquor in her Coraopolis boarding house. Prohibition agents testified that Mrs. Mills had violated her parole by leaving the court's jurisdiction and not reporting to parole officers.

COLLISION KILLS MAN, WOMAN

They were Theodore T. Schoos.

They were Theodore T. Shoos, 40, of 202 Onyx avenue, Mt. Oliver, cashier of the Equitable Life Assurance Company, Pittsburgh branch, and Mrs. Rosalia Rowan, 48, of 39 Winloch avenue, Ingram. Mrs. Rowan was dead when she reached Mercy Hospital and Schoos died three hours later.

H. D. Rowan, husband of the dead woman, said his wife had attended a lodge meeting downtown and was waiting for a street car at Penn avenue and Stanwix street when Schoos, a friend of the family, passed the corner in his automobile and saw her. Stopping his car he volunteered to take her home.

Police believed he was blinded by lights on other automobiles and drove into the front of the eastbound Crafton-Ingram street car.

Liner Answers Call Of Ship in Distress

LONDON, Jan. 11. — (AP.) — Lloyds reported last night the receipt of a wireless from the British liner Transylvania stating that she was going to the assistance of the British steamer, Eskbridge, which was in distress in latitude 57 north and longitude 20.12 west, about 600 miles west of Grangemouth.

The Eskbridge, of 2,107 tons, reported that her steering gear had been carried away. She sailed for New York on January 1 from Grangemouth, Scotland.

Dry Agents Insist They Smell Rum 100 Yards Away

It is possible to make this statement today following the hearing of Charles G. Hopson, of Coverdale, who was held for court by the United States Commissioner on charges of violating the liquor laws.

Agents testified that, through their nostrils, they detected 265 gallons of moonshine in a Library road garage. Hopson was taken as the owner of the stuff.

KEATON'S WIFE, BABIES SAVED

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—The wife and two children of Buster Keaton, film player, were rescued from a fire which today destroyed the dining room and children's sleeping quarters in the actor's Beverly Hills home. Keaton was absent from home.

The blaze was discovered by a nurse, who aroused Mrs. Keaton and the children and rushed them from the house. The servants were awakened in time to make their escape.

Mrs. Keaton and the children were taken to the home of Tom Mix, whose estate adjoins the Keaton residence, where they remained for the night.

Firemen estimated the damage at $10,000.

Three hours after Mrs. Mary Blake, 5805 Broad street, rented a room to a man whose name she neglected to take, he disappeared, she informed police, with these articles:

Three blankets, three bedspreads, six sheets, 24 turkish towels, six pillow cases and $20 cash belonging to Charles Metz, a roomer.

The stranger carried a large suitcase which he used for lugging away the loot, says Mrs. Blake. He was about 28 years old, she told police.

Smoke on Train, Girls Leave School

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Because they smoked on a train during Christmas holidays five New York girls have been dismissed from the Northampton School for Girls, which is located in Calvin Coolidge's home town. Rhinelander Feared Storm Victim; Plan Rescue

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Jan. 11. —(INS.)—Plans for a rescue party to set out for the snowbound mountain resort of Leonard Kip Rhinelander were being considered today as fear grew that Rhinelander and his party have been cut off from needed supplies by the blizzard.

Since the storm, no word has been received from Charleston Park, mountain retreat of Rhinelander, scion of a wealthy New York family.

The camp's provisions will last only until tomorrow, it was learned, and the trip down from Charleston Park would take nearly a week, due to the heavy snowfall.

MISSING FLIERS SOUGHT BY 60 PLANES

Two Test Pilots Lost in Fog And Gale; Blown to Sea, Airport Officials Fear

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—More than 60 airplanes prepared to take off from fields in the metropolitan area today to search for two airmen who climbed yesterday for an altitude test and disappeared.

The searchers, who will leave from Roosevelt Field, Hadley Field, Curtiss Airport, Newark Airport and Teterboro Airport, will constitute the largest group to set out from here on such a mission.

They took off yesterday morning from the Farmingdale (L. I.), field of the Fairchild Aviation Corporation on an altitude test flight.

FLY INTO MIST

Mists were rolled in as they climbed and a strong northwest wind drew the clouds over the field to hide them from view. The sound of their engine died away as they apparently climbed higher.

Anxiety for the plane was felt when six hours elapsed—in that time their fuel supply should have been exhausted.

Sleet and snow fell in the early afternoon and high winds were reported by other aviators. Field officials turned to the theory that Marra and his companion may have been blown over the Atlantic.

"NC3K — lower half cream-colored—upper red."

SHIPS SIGNALED

Ships were asked to keep close watch along the coast and to notify the Airplane Corporation, of New York.

The hope was that Marra had turned his plane inland and succeeded in flying into the winds to make a safe landing.

Weather observations taken by the men before the flight were unpromising, but they expected to stay aloft only a few hours.

Marra is a New York resident who graduated from Kelly field, Texas, on June 22, 1929 and was at McCook field, Ohio, before coming here.

The plane has made an unofficial record for its type, of 20,000 feet altitude.

FUEL EXHAUSTED

Four Fairchild monoplanes, each carrying several observers, set out from the Fairchild Airport at Farmingdale, N. Y., this morning to hunt for Marra and Kirkpatrick. The ships took off at intervals of a few minutes, each assigned to a specific territory.

Officials of the Fairchild Corporation said that the missing plane must be down somewhere; that it could not have kept in the air after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon without renewing its fuel supply.

HOOVER QUIZ SEES LAW SWAMPED

Wickersham Statement Holds Enforcement Machinery 'Entirely Inadequate'

By WILLIAM S. NEAL,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The Hoover administration today was rushing its plans for a drastic reorganization of the entire federal dry enforcement machinery as oratorical skirmishes continued along the congressional prohibition front.

Aroused by the Law Enforcement Commission's declaration that the criminal law machine of the nation has broken down, and stung by criticisms of both drys and anti-drys, the Treasury and Justice departments and congressional leaders joined hands to speed the President's program.

Preparatory to submitting recommendations for definite legislation to Congress on Monday, the commission, headed by George Wickersham, ex-attorney general, issued a statement in which it forecast demands which are expected to make law enforcement the dominant question in Congress for months.

FORCES INADEQUATE

The commission, in a sweeping statement, said:

"A preliminary examination by the commission demonstrated unquestionably that the criminal law enforcement machinery of the country is entirely inadequate; that prohibition, automobile theft, white slave traffic, immigration and other criminal laws of the federal government have overtaxed the capacity and effectiveness of the national machinery for enforcement."

The commission placed organization of Federal Courts as the major problem in the entire question of criminal law administration.

"One of the important factors in emphasizing the need of reform is the cost of crime to the people of the United States," said the commission, announcing it is planning to present detailed figures to the nation.

Air Transport Pilot Dies in Night Crash

Remove Door Handles, Hold 2 Girls in Auto

Two 18-year-old girls in Morals Court today, related that they had been held prisoner in an automobile by two youths who removed the inside door handles to prevent their escape.

"We met the young men in Carson street and they asked us to show them the town in their automobile," testified Antionette Olupa, of 35 Hartford street, who was arraigned with her friend, Cecelia Malnuega, of 107 South Eleventh street, and Joseph Marone, 21, of 301 Baldwin street, Hays.

At first refused permission or opportunity to leave the car, the girls were ejected after an argument and started to walk back when they encountered Patrolman John Mathias, to whom they told their story. He arrested them and later Marone, who had been invited into the automobile by the two youths. The latter escaped.

Marone, a barber, admitted being called out of bed by the youths, whose names he said he did not know. One lived on the North Side, the other in Ohio, he said. He was fined $25 with the alternative of spending 30 days in the workhouse by Magistrate T. D. Jones. The girls were discharged.

HEALTH OFFICIALS FIGHT SPREAD OF 'PARROT' DISEASE

2 DIE IN U. S. AND 6 IN GERMANY

Ohio Enforces Quarantine as Strange Malady Kills Woman; Husband Ill

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

Health authorities in various cities took precautions today to combat the spread of a rare tropical disease known as psittachosis, or "parrot fever."

Two deaths—those of Mrs. Louise Schaeffer in Baltimore and Mrs. Percy C. Williams in Toledo—have been recorded. A score of others are ill of the disease in this country.

OHIO QUARANTINE

Three persons are stricken in Annapolis, Md., and, while their condition was serious today, they were responding to treatment. At Warren, O., three persons were quarantined following the death of Mrs. Williams. Those under quarantine at Warren are Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McEntire and their daughter. The husband of Mrs. Williams, who died in a Toledo hospital, is seriously ill of the disease.

The disease is new in this country, and while it has not reached the proportions of an epidemic, it is causing health authorities concern. At least six deaths have been reported in Germany.

Attention was drawn to "parrot fever" by a recent outbreak in Argentina. A parrot, playing a role in a theatrical production, was fondled by players, and several of them contracted the disease. The parrot died.

MORTALITY HIGH

Scientists agree that while "parrot fever" is a rare disease its mortality among adults is high. Curator Crandall, of the Bronx Zoological Park, New York City, declared parrots suffering from psittacosis are easily recognized. They show loss of appetite, their feathers fall out, they refuse food, but they are inordinately thirsty.

A parrot can communicate the fever to a human being just as a rat or a flea carries bubonic plague, according to Dr. E. K. Sprague, district director of the United States health service.

Physicians regard the difficulty of diagnosing the disease as its greatest menace. Many cases have been confused with pneumonia, but later check-ups have shown that previous contact with an infected parrot has caused illness. It apparently is impossible to diagnose the disease through blood tests, as the germ does not show in the blood of living persons.

The germ has been found only in post-mortem blood tests, adding further mystery as to the nature of the malady.

Kissing parrots—a practice indulged in by women—is believed to have led to several cases, although anyone, in touching an infected bird, is in grave danger of psittacosis.

TRACED TO PET SHOP

United States Surgeon-General Cummings at Washington has requested New York City authorities to attempt to isolate suspected survivors of a shipment of parrots from Argentine to New York.

Dr. Shirley Wyne, New York City health commissioner, has been informed that the three cases in Annapolis were traced to a parrot purchased in a New York pet store. Dr. Wynne has wired to Baltimore requesting the location of the shop and it is expected he will order fumigation of the establishment.

Dr. Cummings has no fear of an epidemic but he advises that contacts with parrots be avoided —especially newly imported parrots.

Germany has been experiencing considerable difficulty in checking the disease. Twenty cases of psittachosis were reported from Berlin, 13 from Hamburg and six from Altona.

It seems parrots and parrakeets imported into Germany by sailors carried the psittachosis baccilus. Argentine was where the parrots came from, according to a communique the authorities submitted to the Reich.

On American steamers arriving from Argentine at Hamburg, sailors and passengers killed all the parrots on board when they learned of the disease.

BREAKDOWN OF DRY LAW SEEN

originally proposed by Senator Glass, (Dem.), of Virginia, to investigate the prohibition question, it announced it is covering a vastly broader field.

ACTION PLANNED

On the heels of the report it became known that governmental departments are prepared to take the first steps in reorganization.

These are:

Preparation of bill by Treasury and Justice departments, transferring dry agents to Justice department and retention of alcohol permit division in Treasury. The bill is to be ready within a week.

Announcement of House Judiciary Committee that it is prepared to consider reorganization of border patrol to unify agencies. Treasury expected to submit recommendations after transfer bill is completed.

Early consideration by both Senate and House committees of elaborate reorganization of the Federal Courts, with more judges, district attorneys and larger appropriations.

Renewed activity by Senator Harris, (Dem.), of Georgia, to add $50,000,000 to the dry enforcement appropriation followed the commission's preliminary statement.

The Wickersham Commission, it was announced, has divided its work into 11 classes with a committee for each. They are: Police, prosecution, courts, penal institutions, prohibition, cost of crime, causes of crime, juvenile delinquency, criminal justice and the foreign born, abuses in enforcement, and statistics. The commission has spent $70,000 of its $250,000 appropriation to date.

SCHOOLS STUDY COURTS

Although leading congressional drys have criticized the commission for going beyond the prohibition question, its statement revealed it has an organization for the most searching investigation into crime conditions ever made.

One committee, it announced, will gather information in the scientific police laboratories of foreign countries. The law schools of the nation are being drafted for a thorough study of the Federal Court system.

The Russell Sage Foundation has been called upon for a study of prisons and the parole and probation system. Abuse of enforcement, including an investigation of the use of the third degree, intimidation and other improper actions by police prosecutors and judical officers is being studied.

The commission divulged little of its prohibition inquiry, but will submit some definite recommendations on Monday. On this subject it said:

"A considerable portion of the activities of the committee has been given to development of proposals for action on most urgent questions. The question of better centralization of responsibility and co-ordination of federal agents has been given careful examination, together with measures for relief of congestion in the courts. Special attention is being given to administration of the law with respect to the manufacture and sale of industrial alcohol."

GIRLS WARNED ON ATHLETICS

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Helen Wills Moody is an exception.

Warning girls against development of ugly muscles and scowling faces and other dangers of athletic competition, Dr Frederick Rand Rogers, state director of physical education, said in an address:

Patterson Will Repays Childhood Kindness

In a pencilled codicil to his will, John G. Patterson, late chairman of the board of the Youghiogheny and Ohio Coal Company, repaid the favor of a lifetime, it was revealed today with the filing of the document for probate. He wrote:

"It is my request and wish that you give $5,000 to Mrs. Jennie P. Monteith and $5,000 to Miss Caroline Patterson, my cousins and daughters of my Uncle John and Aunt Caroline Patterson, who so kindly took me in and cared for me when a little boy."

Later Mr. Patterson added this statement to the will:

"Caroline taken care of in trust fund in Union Trust Company."

Mr. Patterson's estate is valued at $30,000. He leaves the Patterson home at 509 South Linden avenue to his wife, Harriet Patterson, and the remainder "to be enjoyed" by the wife and seven Paul and Hannah—are named ex children, three of whom—James, ecutors.

DORAN TO GIVE 'REAL FACTS' ON DRY LAW

Prohibition Chief Plans New Educational Campaign to Combat Foes' Propaganda

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Chiefly aimed at counteracting anti-dry propaganda charging failure of the dry laws, the prohibitionl bureau soon will launch an "educational campaign" to acquaint the public with the "real facts," it was learned today.

Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Doran declared he did "not care how much prohibition was argued or discussed," but desired to have circulated the exact facts, and to have all misinformation and misunderstandings corrected.

PLANS TO GIVE FACTS

The educational campaign will be of a dignified character carried through the issuance of pamphlets and other circulars which are to be approved by high Treasury officials before being made public. They will not be in the nature of arguments for the law, but rather to set forth the various facts pertaining to enforcement.

For two years Congress has furnished an appropriation of $50,000 annually to acquaint the public with facts pertaining to prohibition.

Some months ago it was planned to carry on a thorough dry advertising campaign over the radio, through motion pictures, with highly-colored posters and to carry dry education into the public schools.

The idea became circulated, however, that the government was going to put prohibition courses in schools and colleges and such a furor was generated that President Hoover stepped in and the plan went awry.

PLANS COMPLETED

A number of pamphlets published relative to the prohibition issue, containing some high-sounding slogans for class room use and otherwise, were consigned to obsurity and the "educational campaign" was allowed to lie dormant. Very little of the first year's appropriation was used.

Since that time Dr. Doran has been working on plans for a more satisfactory educational drive. The scheme virtually has been arranged and the "real facts" about prohibition—something that Congress, the President's law enforcement commission, the drys and anti-drys and everybody else have been trying to get for sometime past—at last will be available.

Today

ease, easily contracted, often fatal. Several cases have occurred in Maryland.

Many "parrots' disease" deaths have occurred in Germany, where parrots are bought, extensively through the port of Hamburg.

Let parrots and their cages alone, until further notice, is the health department's advice.

EXTREMELY puzzling is the news from London that Sir Charles Baron, who presides at Bow Street Police Court, says there is less drunkenness today than there was 23 years ago when he became a magistrate. That's hard to explain, since there is no prohibition in England.

Possibly the fact that the drinking of whisky and gin is made expensive, while beer is easy to get, may have something to do with it.

A LITTLE late for the depressed stock speculators, money has become definitely cheap. You can borrow it in Wall street at 4 per cent, as much as you want, if you have the collateral.

But with many fellow-citizens getting the collateral is the problem, after the big Wall street wind.

MURDER STORY FOUND HOAX

Phillip Fears, 17, Negro, of Morgan street, confessed today that he told an untruth when he implicated himself and two other Negroes in the murder of Plainclothesman James E. Hughes, detectives announced.

In a signed statement, according to detectives, Fears declared that he and two companions, Charles Stewart, 19, of Wadsworth street, and James T. Lee, 17, Negroes, of Reed street, were the trio who killed Hughes, a Negro, during a chase following the holdup of the grocery store of Morris Pechersky, at 10 Emmett street, the night of December 27.

The detectives checked the movements of Stewart and Lee, and it developed that Stewart was in jail on the night of the shooting, they said. He was said to have been committed to jail the morning of December 27 and released the folowing day.

Stewart and Lee probably will be discharged. Fears will be held to face a charge of stealing an automobile, on which he was arrested in Canonsburg.

SEE ARMSTRONG IGNORED

The rumored demotion of Bernard J. Kirley from police inspector at East End Station to lieutenant has aroused friends of his sponsor, County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, who fear Armstrong is being ignored by the Kline administration.

Inspector Kirley is a brother of Francis B. Kirley, Republican chairman of the Sixteenth Ward and intimate friend of Controller Daniel Winters.

All East End ward chairmen, including City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, are said to have demanded the promotion of Nuncie Marino from captain to inspector and it is believed that Kirley will be deposed to make a place for Marino.

The captaincy at Oakland Station that was vacated last Monday when Andrew Charles, friend of former Councilman James F. Malone, was reduced to patrolman is to be given to John J. McNerney, a patrolman in Morals Court, according to rumor.

CRUISER CUT CHEERS U.S. ENVOYS

British Reduction Viewed As Clinching Agreement Of Hoover and MacDonald

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service.

ABOARD S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, At Sea, Jan. 11.—The announcement by H. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, that Great Britain was prepared to reduce her cruiser requirements from the minimum of 70 she demanded at the Geneva naval conference of 1927 to a minimum of 50, was received with general satisfaction today by the American delegates now journeying to the London naval arm conference.

The delegates indicated that they regarded the admiralty chief's announcement as a seal of approval from the British admiralty which has the effect of clinching the disarmament agreement reached by President Hoover and Premier MacDonald in their informal conferences.

CERTAIN OF PARITY

Secretary of State Stimson, head of the American delegation, declined to make any direct comment regarding Alexander's announcement. He merely smiled, pending official information regarding the announcement.

Of course, the size of these 50 cruisers which Great Britain will demand at the forthcoming conference is a matter of vital importance which will have to be considered.

Although the cut in naval armaments proposed by the admiralty head is drastic when compared with Great Britain's former demands, it still leaves Britain with a slight superiority in gross tonnage. To offset this advantage, the United States will have to be allowed to build more ten-thousand-ton cruisers.

No difficulty is anticipated in bringing about this adjustment in the interests of parity, the delegates indicated, President Hoover and Premier MacDonald arrived at a basis for making this adjustment when they met last October, it is believed.

The news that France had definitely refused to agree to naval parity with Italy was not commented upon either by Secretary Stimson or the other four delegates. All crept into a shell of reticence masked by explanation that no official confirmation of the report had been received from informed sources.

EAGER TO START WORK

It appeared, however, to occasion no surprises, probably having been anticipated by the delegates through previous information from Ambassador Walter E. Edge on the French position.

The George Washington's engines are pushing the vessel eastward at its highest speed. Secretary Stimson and his collegues, Secretary of the Navy Adams, Ambassador to Mexico Dwight W. Morrow and Senators Robinson and Reed, are anxious to reach Plymouth, England, as early as possible Friday morning.

ROSENWALD GIVES BRIDE $1,000,000 TO WAIVE RIGHTS

WIFE DROPS ALL CLAIMS TO ESTATE

Pre-Nuptial Agreement of Wealthy Philanthropist And Spouse Disclosed

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—Julius Rosenwald, multi-millionaire philanthropist, effected a pre-nuptial agreement with his bride, the former Mrs. Adelaide Goodkind, giving her $1,000,000 in lieu of all rights to the Rosenwald estate, it was disclosed here today.

Rosenwald and his bride left aboard the Saturnia for a honeymoon cruise to Italy and Egypt following their marriage Wednesday in the Philadelphia home of the philanthropist's son, Lessing.

Mrs. Rosenwald, the widow of the late Benjamin L. Goodkind, wealthy pioneer merchant of St. Paul, Minn., possesses a fortune in her own name, it is understood, and the agreement was entered into merely as the usual legal form where such large estates are involved.

In the agreement, drawn up by Chicago attorneys, his wife is to receive $1,000,000 in securities, waiving her dower rights, and in return Rosenwald is to waive all dower rights to his bride's estate.

Although regarded as one of the wealthiest men in the United States, the exact size of Rosenwald's fortune has never been revealed officially.

POPE OPPOSES MIXED SPORTS

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 11.—Pope Pius XI today issued an encyclical reaffirming the rights of the Catholic Church in regard to education as distinct from the rights of the state.

The question of education of children has always been one of the differences marring the harmonious relations between the church and state.

Recently the Pope criticized Premier Mussolini for permitting mass athletic demonstrations, in which girls and young women took part. His holiness maintained that it was improper for girls to partake in such spectacles as part of their education.

Since the breach between the church and state, which was healed by the lateran treaties last year, education of the young has been a state affair.

$150,000 RUM SEIZURE MADE

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 11.—(AP.)—United States customs officers here seized a sealed shipment of 420 cases of French wines, liquors and Scotch whisky in a Cleveland railroad yard.

The shipment, valued at $150,000, was said by customs officers to represent the largest seizure ever made in the interior. Customs Agent Frank E. Jewell was in charge.

The boxes of wines, liquers and whisky were labeled "roofing insulating cement.

Agent Jewell received information that the huge shipment had been routed through Cleveland and notified the railroads which placed detectives in charge of the car until it arrived here. The shipment was en route from a Michigan town to New York City.

Names of the shipper, the town from which the freight was shipped and of the consignee were withheld by officials.

Mistakes Bandits For Jokesters, Shot Down

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—(INS.) Thinking two bandits were "just playful fellows," Leo Weiskopf gave them a push rather than raise his hands. Today he is near death with two bullet wounds.

The bandit pair accosted him from an alleyway as he was accompanying his daughter home from a party. They ordered him to put up his hands.

"I gave them a shove to show them they couldn't fool me. Then one of them fired and that's all I know," Weiskopf said.

BRIDE CRIES AT SENTENCE

Copious tears from his bride of six weeks greeted the three to six months jail sentence imposed by Judge Harry H. Rowand in Criminal Court, on Fred Calhoun, 24, of Edward street, when he pleaded no defense to the theft of a decrepit automobile valued at $50 from Charles Casside, 2945 Brunot street, October 30, a month before his marriage.

"I was drunk when I took the machine, and they arrested me when I was bringing it back the next day," was Calhoun's explanation.

His bride, Catherine Calhoun, stood by his side as he made his plea, and asked the judge to be lenient. She had known of the charge against her fiance and helped him to get bail.

BOY, 6, TAKEN TO DONOHOE INQUEST

Youngster Found Here Sent To Uniontown; 'Testimony' Unimportant, Police Say

Alfred Koll, 6-year-old boy, who was questioned here by Fayette County authorities in connection with the murder of John Donohoe, Uniontown constable, was taken back to that city early today to tell his story when the coroner continues with his inquest into the officer's death.

Fayette County Detective A. A. Downing came to North Side Police Station at 4 a. m., and police turned the boy over to him.

The lad's testimony is not considered important and he is far from being the "key witness" in the case, according to Downing.

'TAMPERING' AVOIDED

Fayette County authorities said they probably would hold the boy in the Fayette County juvenile detention headquarters until the continued hearing in the inquest—not because they consider him an important witness, but to prevent amateur crime solvers from tampering with him. Words were evidently put into his mouth yesterday by unofficial sleuths, they say.

State police had investigated the boy's story during the first investigation that followed the killing of Donohoe in July, but did not place much credence in the tales he told of seeing a fight.

The boy was located by North Side police yesterday in a rooming house at 1114 Arch street where he had been left by his mother, Velma Koll, of Craft avenue, who also was questioned by police. A short time before the Donohoe murder, the boy had been taken to Uniontown by his mother and left there at the home of Mrs. Helen Hess. He was there when the murder occurred and for a short time afterward. The mother then returned him to Pittsburgh.

While in the Hess home a short time before being taken away, the child is said to have told several stories about a fight. The state police believe he was referring to a brawl of some sort and not the actual killing. The stories were mentioned Wednesday at the Donohoe inquest, and the coroner continued the inquest until the boy could be located and his story investigated.

Three Boys Held As Home Robbers

Chief W. C. McDowell and Patrolman C. P. Leger, of Pitcairn, today had recovered a part of the loot alleged to have been taken from several homes in that borough by a trio of boys, all under 15 years of age. Following a hearing on larceny charges before Justice of the Peace William G. Hoehl, the boys were turned over to the Juvenile detention rooms, pending disposition of their case. Because of their ages the Sun-Telegraph will not print their names.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Such snow and shoveling as was never before seen took place last night at State and Eleventh street, and in the highways and byways adjacent thereto.

Andro Pucin, store owner, had lost $1,000 in currency, and the word got around. The citizenry turned out in droves to shovel the snow that might be hiding the bills.

At sunup today Pucin had received no report of the money's being found; and that is one way of putting it.

SUES TO BREAK $6,000,000 HUBERT WILL

Brother Attacks Legality Of Gift Apportioned by Coolidge and His Aids

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—A suit attacking legality of provision in the will of Conrad Hubert, under which Calvin Coolidge, Alfred E. Smith and Julius Rosenwald allocated $6,000,000 in public benefactions was on file today.

Joseph Horwich, a brother of Mr. Hubert, who was bequeathed $1,000,000, is the complainant. Under terms of the will he risks his legacy, as the document provides that any heir-at-law or next of kin who contests the document shall have their legacies revoked and the amount shall be added to the portion left for distribution to charity.

HAD CHANGED NAME

Last Monday the committee, headed by Mr. Coolidge, announced the names of 34 institutions, colleges and organizations which they had selected to share in the $6,000,000 residuary estate after one-fourth of the total had been divided among Mr. Hubert's two brothers and sister.

Mr. Hubert was born in Minsk, Russia, of Jewish parents named Horowitz, he adopted the name Hubert after coming to this country. He was a manufacturer of flashlights.

The complaint names the Bankers Trust Company and C. Bertram Plante, executors of the will, as defendants.

Samuel K. Abahrams, attorney for the executors, said the suit may have the effect of delaying distribution of the benefactions as outlined by the committee. He said that despite the court action, the executors plan to proceed with the filing of their accounting in Surrogate's Court within the next two months and that distribution of the funds, unless halted by court order, would proceed immediately after.

$4,600,000 NOW READY

Liquidated assets amounting to $4,600,000 are available for distribution, the committee announced.

Mr. Horwich in his complaint charges that the clauses in the will providing for the distribution of three-fourths of the estate to "religious, educational and charitable or benevolent institutions" to be selected by a committee of three prominent citizens is indefinite and vague.

CLEVELAND FIRE LOSS $900,000

CLEVELAND, Jan. 11. — (AP.)—Flames last night destroyed the Cleveland Grain Company elevator, located in the flats of the Cuyahoga River, at an estimated loss of $900,000 despite the efforts 29 companies and crews of two city tugs who brought every available fire hose in the city into play

Charles G. Wilkins, president, said that grain valued at more than $500,000 was stored in the elevator and that there was little prospect of any salvage. The structure itself was valued at $400,000 and was purchased only yesterday by the county in order to obtain the site for part of a new viaduct to be constructed across the valley. County officials had obtained the insurance on the 10-story building.

Poison Pen Letters Blamed in Suicide

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Jan. 11.—Poison pen letters are believed to have been responsible for the suicide of Mrs. M. K. Thompson, of Brookville, who was found hanging to the rafters of an outhouse at her home. She had been despondent recently and a letter making fun of the aged woman was among her effects. She had been married the second time and it was after her second marriage that alleged attacks are believed to have begun. She left a considerable sum of money to charity in Brookville, the beneficiaries being the Lutheran Church, the Brookville Hospital, the Salvation Army and the Brookville Chapter of the Red Cross. She left about $10,000.

'BLANKETING' OF WJAS TO BRING QUIZ

Radio Commission Sends Investigator to Determine Cause of Air Jam Here

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—While a special investigator for the Federal Radio Commission was to leave here today for Pittsburgh to look into the alleged "blanketing" of station WJAS, unless something altogether new is shown as the cause, it seems certain that WCAE'S experimental license to increase its power from 500 to 1,000 watts will be revoked by the commission.

The matter, which never before had been brought to the attention of the commission, came up yesterday afternoon when the entire congressional delegation from Allegheny County appeared at a special hearing on the subject.

The dean of the delegation, Representative Stephen G. Porter, introduced Representative Harry A. Estep as spokesman. Estep said that the protest had come to the members of Congress from the radio users and that there had been no complaints until about 10 days ago, when the power of WCAE was increased.

KQV NOT AFFECTED

He said that the transmission from KQV had not been affected, but since then it had been practically impossible to receive from WJAS. He went on to say that there was no disposition on his part, or that of any other member of Congress, to work a hardship on WCAE, and proposed several methods through which he thought the situation might be alleviated without cutting the power of WCAE.

One suggestion he made was that WCAE should be returned to the channel which it formerly had before reallocation and which had been given to a California station. This was promptly vetoed by Chairman Robinson, of the board, who stated that to do such a thing would probably mean at least 40 other changes.

A second suggestion was that another channel which rightfully belonged to zone two but not in use should be allotted to WCAE. Chairman Robinson stated that at the present time this channel was out of service due to suit which had been brought in the courts, but that under any circumstances he did not feel it should be allotted to either Pittsburgh or Philadelphia, but probably in the end should go to Harrisburg.

Two experts of the board were present at the hearings, George Sutton and Guy Hill, and, in response to questions, stated that the same ituation had arisen in other cities, where one station had been allowed to increase its power, with the result of "blanketing" another. It was mainly for this reason, they said, that the license grantin, WCAE the right to operate on a 1,000-watt basis had been "experimental" and hence could be revoked at any time.

EXPERTS IMPRESSED

Representative Estep stated that according to his understanding WJAS had moved to its present location about 12 miles from Pittsburgh at the request of the commission, and had spent $100,000 on its new plant, hence ought to be given special consideration. Sutton answered that WJAS had been given a suggestion by the board that if it moved from its downtown location to a point further out it would avoid in great measure interference caused by the steel structure of the buildings where it had been, but that no suggestion that it should move out 12 miles had been made. He said that the recent change in location of WCAE had been suggested by the commission for the same reason.

The commission seemed greatly impressed by the facts cited by Estep and the fair manner in which he wished to have the body act, pleading for both stations, and not attempting to say that WCAE was the cause of the trouble but simply that the trouble never had existed until the increase of power by that station.

The other representatives present were Clyde Kelly, Patrick J. Sullivan and Guy E. Campbell. Senators Reed and Grundy were represented by their secretaries.

$300,000 FIRE AS LOUISVILLE (KY.) LUMBER YARD AND FIVE COTTAGES BURNED, KILLING FIRE COMPANY OFFICER

Wilbur Pledges New Era In Child Welfare

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Instead of permitting the stream of youth to pass and pick up those who fall in the march, the White House conference on child health and protection proposes to walk along with the young and understand their problems.

Addressing the mid-winter meeting of the board of directors of the Federated Women's Clubs here last night, Secretary Wilbur, chairman of the conference, so described its plans. Speaking at the same meeting was Dr. H. E. Barnard, a director of the conference.

From a score of viewpoints, Wilbur said, 500 experts are presenting an array of facts about the problems of childhood such as has never been gathered in this world before.

Dr. Barnard placed the child conference in a "big four" of the early Hoover administration projects, and the progress toward international agreements looking toward the reduction of armament.

Juvenile Home Unlocked, One in 14 Escapes

Although there are no locks on the doors because the bureau of fire will not permit them to be locked, only one of every 14 children sent to the Juvenile Detention Home, Fifth avenue, escaped during the last year, according to the report of A. L. Wills, superintendent. The report was submitted at the meeting of the Juvenile Court Advisory Committee held yesterday at Kaufmann's.

The Bureau of Fire will not permit the locking of any doors in either of the two ramshackle residences which house the Juvenile Detention rooms because they are fire hazards and dangerous for the housing of the children. "In spite of the fact that by order of the fire department we do not lock the doors, 93 per cent of the children brought in stayed," Wills said.

The plans for a model Juvenile Court detention home have been before the County Commissioners several times during the last two years. No action has been taken by the commissioners.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Bud Season Ends With Dinner

EVEN if the season is generally conceded to be over, there's far too much going on for one to talk about a January lull. Today there are three events that are interesting to everyone, two weddings and the last bud party.

Dr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Billings will give the debutante entertainment, a dinner, this evening in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, with their young cousin, Mary C. Black, daughter of Mrs. John L. Black, of the Hotel Schenley, as guest of honor. Covers will be laid for 60 with spring flowers decorating the tables. And after the dinner the guests will attend the club's Saturday night dance.

And in St. Louis, Mo., at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon, the Sheldon-Horne wedding is taking place, and in New York, Mary Elizabeth Carter, daughter of Mrs. Charles Gibbs Carter, of Park avenue, formerly of New York, will marry Charles Graydon Poore, of New York.

ST. PETER'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH of St. Louis is the scene of the marriage of Kathleen Sheldon, daughter of the Stephen Beaumont Sheldons, and Bernard Shea Horne, Jr., of Pittsburgh, son of the Bernard Shea Hornes, of Princeton, N. J.

Easter lilies and tall, slender tapers provide a suitable background for the bride, who is wearing a medieval bridal robe, of antique-ivory colored satin. Relieving the long straight lines of the moyen age are draperies from the elbow-length sleeves, lined in yellow satin, which extend the length of the court train. Her veil is of tulle in a deep antique ivory shade with a headdress of rose point lace, together with orange blossoms framing her face. She is carrying calla lilies.

And the maid of honor, Janet Gardner, of St. Louis, and the bridesmaids, Elinor Munroe, of Pittsburgh, daughter of the James D. Munroes; Jane Messick, Lorraine Grover, Susie Singleton, Dorinda Kennerly, Mrs. John Burton Kennard, Jr., Mrs. Fielding Childress, all of St. Louis; Mrs. Calvin Anderson Case, of Bronxville, N. The sleeves are long and tight fitting and boleros are of the same material, banded with narrow circular flounces. Their hats are of silk in an antique ivory shade, and their flowers are Talisman roses and African daisies.

Following the church ceremony is a reception in the Sheldon home. A marquee has been built to take care of the many guests. The wedding party and the Sheldons and the Hornes are receiving in the music room before an embankment of palms, southern smilax and two tall gold standards holding baskets of snapdragons, freezia, narcissus, sweet peas and butterfly roses.

Spring flowers in baskets decorate the other reception rooms and the fireplace in the reception hall.

The bridal table, laid for 30 guests, is centered with butterfly roses, lilies of the valley and baby breath. The marquee is garlanded with smilax and decorated with palms and flowers.

Among those attending the wedding from out of town are the Bernard Shea Hornes, of Princeton, father and mother of the bridegroom, and Nathanial Holmes, of Pittsburgh.

The young Hornes will spend their honeymoon in Florida, and will be at home in the Pennsylvania Apartments after February 1.

The bride is prominent in St. Louis society, where she made her debut at a dinner-dance in the St. Louis Country Club and at a reception in her parents' home. NEWEST CREATIONS IN SMART TAILORED SUITS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 11.—The suit in all its infinite variety continues to intrigue us. It can afford to remain indifferent to the vagaries of fashion, for it is too sure of its place in our affections, to be ignored for long, if at all. Even the winter cannot quite banish the suit, for the latest model created for present wear, shows a fur-lined coat, and yet is distinctly a suit, that should be equally wearable in town or country. The strictly tailored suit that suffered something of an eclipse during the earlier part of the season shows signs of staging a come-back.

There are, of course, many women who remain true to the "tailleur," whatever fashion may prescribe, for that style best expresses their personalities, and, incidentally, displays a good figure and carriage at its best—which may account for its perennial place in the sartorial sphere. And these women who are addicted to the "tailored" will rejoice at the smart models shown in several of the recent mid-season collections, models which, while adhering faithfully to the correct lines, manage somehow to capture the subtle charm of the new line and mode.

* * *

WE HAVE had sketched for you, two very different but delightful suits. The first is a very smart sports model—which, of course, is really our old friend the ensemble—from the house of Vionnet. It is of brown and beige tweed with a bodice of brown velveteen. The three-quarter-length coat should be warm and snug, for it is lined throughout with brown caracul, the same fur also used to fashion the high collar. Small straps of the material button around the cuff holding the sleeve closely in at the wrist.

JEAN PATOU showed several very good versions of the "tailleur" in his recent mid-season collection, and so we send you a sketch of one that met with marked approval from the distinguished gathering, assembled to admire his very attractive creations. You will notice that this suit has a rather longer coat, than one has associated with the tailored suit, but it is believed that such coats are important for early Spring.

The model sketched is of light weight woolen material in black, and the mannish cut coat is nearly to the knees. The straight skirt has two inverted pleats in front, and is a sensible length.

LOVEJOY By Beatrice BURTON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Armed with happiness, love and youth, Tom Nicholson and Lovejoy Mason are married. Tom's salary is small. They take a tiny flat. To both marriage was a leap in the dark. For two years, before the marriage, Tom had been jealous of Steve Oglebay, rich and handsome bachelor. Downtown with her friend, Norrie Shane, Lovejoy meets Steve. Although Norrie refuses, Lovejoy goes alone to lunch with him. She sees Tom.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IV.

UNTIL that moment Lovejoy had not realized that she was doing anything wrong.

But she knew it now. She knew it by the strong feeling of guilt and terror that came sweeping over her in a flood the very instant that she saw Tom sitting there on the other side of the big luxurious restaurant with its high windows and its white-covered tables.

He was talking earnestly to the middle-aged man who was with him.

And even through her terror and her embarrassment, Lovejoy noticed how good-looking he was with his straight back, his broad square shoulders and the fine head that was set upon them.

Suppose he suddenly turned that handsome head of his and saw her sitting there with Stephen Oglebay.

What would he think?

What would he do?

How could she explain things to him? Her being there with a man who had been in love with her for years.

"Steve," she said tensely, "Tom's sitting over there in the corner. I'm afraid I shouldn't have come here with you—I'm afraid he'll see me and be angry. . . ."

She broke off talking as the waiter came up to the table and set a cup of iced tomato bouillon before her.

"But you told Miss Shane that you'd tell your husband about having lunch with me," Steve reminded her, and picking up his spoon he began his soup. "You said he wouldn't care."

"I know—" she answered.

But it was one thing to tell your husband about lunching with another man, after it was all over. And it was quite another to have him catch you in the very act of eating that cozy little meal for two.

"I'm going, Steve," she said suddenly, and pushed back her chair. "I'm going before Tom sees me."

As she swayed slowly to her feet, Tom turned his head and saw her.

Fascinated and unable to move, she watched his eyes narrow as they took her and Steve Oglebay in. . . . She found herself stupidly wondering what he was thinking about finding the pair of them there.

Frowning, he crumpled up his napkin in his hands and laid it down on the cloth before him. He said something to the man who sat across the table from him, and then stood up. All this he did without once taking his eyes from Lovejoy's face.

He started across the room.

And then—

And then in the wide arch of the doorway that opened from the lobby, a tall slender figure suddenly appeared as if by magic . . . Norrie Shane, her arms full of little packages, her plain round hat pushed too far back from her forehead, her eyes searching the dining room.

Lovejoy made a sound that was half a laugh and half a sob of relief as she saw her standing there. Then she went hurrying across the deep soft carpet and laid a welcoming hand on her shoulder.

"Norrie," she said to her half hysterically, "you've saved my life. Please let Tom think I knew you were coming here."

There was no time to explain. No time to even say another word.

For Tom had reached the doorway almost as soon as she had. He was standing close to her, looking from her face to Norrie's and grinning in his boyish, friendly way as he began to take Norrie's bundles from her.

"I'll give these to the check-girl," he was saying. "She'll look after them . . . How did you girls happen to come in here for lunch? Why didn't you tell me you were coming downtown this morning? I would have been glad to stand you both to a square meal."

It was Norrie who answered him. "We just happened to run into Mr. Oglebay," she said stiffly. "We were going to have lunch at Tingley's . . . but we happened to meet him."

And so she lied like a lady for the second time that day, to make things easy for Lovejoy.

"Norrie, you're an old peach," the girl said to her when Tom had gone out into the lobby with her packages. "What ever made you decide to join us here?"

"Well, I thought things over," she explained, "and I thought it would look disgraceful for you to be seen here lunching alone with this Oglebay, so I came in . . . I didn't want to, I can tell you."

She looked out into the lobby where Tom had disappeared.

"But I'm glad I did now," she added quietly. "Lovejoy, when a man cares for a girl the way your husband cares about you—well, that girl is just insane if she takes chances with her happiness."

Lovejoy nodded.

"You certainly saved the day by showing up here, Norrie," she said. "If Tom had known that I came here alone with Steve Oglebay I don't know what he'd have done. I wish you'd seen him when he caught sight of us at that table. . . . He looked as if he were going to kill us. . . ." She caught her breath, remembering how angry he had been.

"Well, now that you know how jealous he can be, don't make him jealous," Norrie advised in her quiet, sensible way. "If I were lucky enough to be married to a man like Tom Nicholson I'd never know there was another man in the world . . . and please believe me."

There was a wistful note in her voice that made Lovejoy study her with wondering curious eyes as she followed her to Steve Oglebay's table a moment later.

How dreadful it must be to be twenty-seven years old, as Norrie was, without ever having had a love affair . . . Without ever having a man look at you with his admiration and his desire for you in his eyes.

Oh, well, that was the way of the world and of life itself; if you were beautiful, or if you happened to have the irresistible thing known as charm or sex-appeal or "come-hither," some man was sure to take you for his own.

But if you had none of those alluring qualities . . . why, then you had to be contented with the willing-worker kind of life that Norrie Shane lived. Slaving day in and day out, year in and year out, earning your own living and pretending that you had everything you wanted. . . . Poor Norrie, whose lot was to take care of the babies of women who had had luck enough or looks enough or lure enough to catch a man.

They took a tiny green cottage just beyond the outskirts of the town, in a modest little lane that backed upon a fashionable street in the Country Club neighborhood.

And before she had been in that cottage a week Lovejoy met Aline Alderson, who was to have more to do with the planning and changing of her life than any other person on earth.

Fay King Analyzes the Love Motive and Its Strange Kinks

SHE ATTRACTS THE WRONG MAN BECAUSE SHE CAN BE MORE FASCINATING WHEN SHE DOESN'T CARE TOO MUCH
SHE LOSES THE MAN SHE LOVES BY TOO SUCCESSFULLY HIDING HER INTEREST IN HIM
FAY KING

By FAY KING

THE most frequent heart trouble we hear of is that "those we love do not love us and those that love us we cannot love!"

Now the real cause of all this, I think, is because we are not half as nice to those we could love as we are to those we don't love.

Grown up love is like the little boy who was dying to carry our books home from school, but threw rocks at us instead, and the little girl who liked Willie but made faces at him so he wouldn't find it out.

Don't lose the one you love by too completely hiding your real feelings, or win the one you don't care for by pretending too well.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Confidential Chat With Olina Is Interrupted.

I DO not know that anyone has ever surprised me quite as much as did Princess Olina when she had quietly inferred that I did not want Mary to be a girl who should marry Prince Georges. One moment she had been looking up at me with the bewildered eyes of an unhappy child. The next she was regarding me with the shrewd insight of a poised woman. And suddenly I decided to answer the princess, not the girl-child who had come to me for advice concerning the long-looked-for "personal" which her mother, the queen, had caused to be inserted in a morning newspaper.

"You are correct in your inference," I said tersely. "I do not think Mary would be happy with Prince Georges after the first glamour of her romance wore off, and that consideration must come first with her uncle and me."

"You are not considering Georges' happines then, at all?" There was a faint tinge of hostility in her manner.

"Would you expect us to consider it if it clashed with Mary's?" I asked the question that I might have more time for mental parley. How much should I hint to her of what I believed to be the real attitude of Georges and Mary toward each other?

"Perhaps you think Noel would not be happy with me either," she said, and the hostility of her tone had deepened. I decided to tell her nothing. She had been on the verge of a whole-hearted confiding in me, I was sure. Then her tensed nerves had found cause for offense in my suggestion that her mother might be planning her marriage to Prince Georges. I must walk warily, I saw, if I wished to be of service to her.

"I have no thoughts upon that subject, I am sure," I said, smilingly, ignoring her hauteur. "It is a different case, altogether. I know Mary's temperament. I do not know yours nor Noel's. If present devotion to a fiancee counts, then Noel"—I let a teasing little smile finish my sentence.

The child in her struggled with the princess and triumphed.

"He is devoted," she said sharply, stressing the verb, "and no matter what Maman says, I shall be loyal to him. If she doesn't sanction my marrying him, I shall run away again. It won't be as difficult as the last time, for Mr. Veritzen will be ready to help me. Noel has the greatest faith in his father—says that he will be able to smooth away all difficulties."

"If you wish them smoothed away," I almost made the comment aloud, caught the words back just in time. But that she was misleading me or herself—probably both of us—I was sure.

"You probably will need his help," I commented drily, with a mental salute to Noel. He was indeed a "trouper," as Harry Underwood had dubbed Mary. Never once since our interview had he stepped out of his role of devoted, exacting fiance.

"I cannot imagine that your mother will approve of your marriage to anyone not of royal birth."

"I know that," she said. "And she will be doubly angry when she realizes that instead of her daughter being Queen of Trees, the throne will be shared. . . ."

She stopped short and flashed a frightened look at me.

"Yes, I can imagine her chagrin," I said. "But, let me remind you of the old saw which concerns the premature crossing of bridges. Just now, you have only one thing to consider, and that is the answer you wish to send to your mother. I assume you wish to answer this personal."

"Oh, yes," she returned eagerly. "But I do not know how to go about it. You see very few people—and those trusted friends and servants—know that I ran away from the hotel just before my family went back to Transvania. The people over there think that I am still at one of our country places convalescing from a terrible illness. I do not know how Maman managed to send that 'personal' to the paper. She surely did not cable it herself, for if such a message went out from the palace, everyone would suspect something."

"She probably sent a code cable to some trusted friend over here who decoded it and sent it to the paper for her."

"I never thought of that," she said with widened eyes. "But I don't know any code, or anyone to whom I could send it if I did know one. But I must get word to Maman immediately if I can."

"There is no 'if' about it," I assured her. "You do not know Mr. Underwood's resourcefulness or you would not have used the word. Just write out your message and he will put it into code and send it to some associate of his in Transvania who will see that your mother receives it. But do not give any clue to Prince Georges' whereabouts. In fact I doubt if Mr. Underwood will wish you to mention him at all."

"I'll show it to you first," she promised. "Ah-h!"

The word was almost a shriek. From behind us something whizzed, almost grazing Princess Olina's shoulder, and at our feet fell an arrow with a twist of paper under its head.

MISS PAT

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LV.

GUY stood in the cave above the dark, abrupt step down which Slim had fallen. He flashed his light along this lowed level. It showed clear for 50 feet—a blind, shallow pit.

But desperate, seeing a last hope, he got down and explored it. He felt the walls as though they were demoniac and purposely concealing the opening through which Pat and Billy had vanished. The lower level had no exit.

He stood clammy, fighting the horror that now sought entrance to his mind. This horror was a beast waiting. He would not let it leap upon him.

He went back and pounded the walls. He shouted, "Pat! Billy! It's Guy. Answer. Pat—Oh, God, can't you hear?"

Three hours he'd searched the cave. He hadn't found them. He'd gone down every gallery—crawled along blind tunnels. He shouted. Not knowing it, he'd sobbed aloud. And all along he'd left rocks and scraps of the parachute Sheik had cut to pieces. These marked his route.

He said to himself in a still terror: "I haven't missed a turn. It's not such a huge cave." Then he wiped his forehead; it was immediately moist again. The cave might not be huge, it was ghastly. It went in bewildering parallels in dizzying circles. Twice he had almost lost his way.

And now he seemed to have penetrated all of its dark, echoing aisles. Now he was back at the entrance. He had not found her.

He stood for a moment. His hoarse, imploring cries came back in a dismal, hollow sob.

But she was here, she must be here! Each lost moment creeping upon her with added menace. Each lost moment bringing near an hour when he would be too late. He grew gray with his fear, with a clammy, half-fainting alarm.

For the third time he went up to the man he had tied to the one lone tree on the canyon floor. He shook him. He stooped down and in a frenzy demanded: "Have you lied?"

In the flashlight Sheik saw murder and anguish in the dark, thin face above his own.

"If she went into that cave, she'd be there! There's one exit. ANSWER ME—what have you done with them?"

He saw Sheik's mouth working, saw the lips framing words. When no sound came, he turned wild. He shouted: "Did she go in the cave? Did you kill them? Did she jump in the parachute? or did you hurl them over the cliff? Good God—SPEAK!"

"She went in the cave."

"Did she come out again? Why isn't she there? Where could she go that I've not gone?"

Sheik's arms were bound to his sides. His fingers touched the ground. And these now scraped up pebbles. He said in husky's gasps: "Did you see that black pit? Not the step were Slim fell—a black, bottomless pit?"

"At the end of a long gallery?"

"Yes—at the end of it. Maybe they fell down that."

Guy let the limp form sink to the ground. He steadied himself. His whole body flung against the tree trunk. No! Pat hadn't stumbled in the cave. She'd not plunged into that blinding abyss. Twice he had stood above it and told himself: "She didn't fall. God, she's not down there!"

His light had not picked out the bottom of this formidable pit. He'd drawn from it with a shudder. He had not wished to see its floor.

But now for the fourth time he went along that gallery parallel to the entrance. Here Sheik swore they had gone. Here the child had cried. Distinctly they had heard. All along were avenues where sound traveled with piercing, uncanny sharpness. Last night, Sheik declared, the girl and the kid were in the lofty vault at the end of this gallery.

"It's no lie—look!" He pointed to the crevice where he'd hacked so violently at the wall.

'Last night Pat had darted in a white terror down this aisle. Here were little mounds of earth—every 15 feet.

When Guy first saw these he trembled. Queer, beseeching sounds came and made little wild prayers at his lips. Pat had left these! A thing like this, in her fright, she would surely have done. Here, too, was the empty tuna can.

He had gone on in a flame of hope. Abruptly the mounds ended. Fifty feet further the cave widened. In a great circular area. This semi-circle had a lofty ceiling. It had almost numberless niches and tunnels. And two long galleries, each with other turns.

Now Guy stood and played the light over the great arc. He felt stifled. Perspiration stood out in big drops. He rubbed his neck—eased the strain there. He said aloud: "Wonder where I missed out—wonder which path she could have taken. This ends in a wall. That one has no turn. I've gone here—half a dozen times."

He plunged into it. He stooped down and picked up bits of the parachute silk.

Now he lay on the floor, he leaned over the black drop and played his flashlight on its depths. He said to himself, hoarsely: "It has no bottom!"

He got up and went down one turn, reached the end of this and tried another. All along were bits of silk.

But suddenly and with such a violent trembling that he had to lean against the wall for breath; he had to beat with his hands against the fogs that seemed sucking at this brain—suddenly he found himself in a low, narrow passage. And here there were no bits of silk—no rocks. Here he had not penetrated before.

Hot, small hands pressed on her cheeks. Terrified whimpers went in and out of her ears. In a dream Pat heard. The remnant of her strength fought against consciousness—fought to remain in this kind half-faint.

But now the little arms squeezed, maddened, about her neck; now the little voice shrilled: "Wake up! Wake up!"

Mechanically she tightened her hold on him. Mustn't let him wander away. He'd tried that. Sometimes he'd awakened and kicked at the walls—at her. Some times he'd been wild like that, with fright. She murmured in a dull, muffled response: "It's night—sleep—"

"No—Oh, Pat—I'm sick—You said my mother was coming . . . Make her come—Pat—please!"

She was awake now. With a sickening chill she was fiddling with the flashlight. She was uttering aloud: "It's not out . . . It will come on—"

And she began creeping. She took matches from her pocket—crept an inch.

She struck the light and looked at her watch. In the flicker she saw that it was after nine. She said: "We'll get back. It's not so far—make the matches last—Billy, keep hold tight of my arm."

"You carry me—Pussy is tired—"

"No, creep—"

They went on so. She counted twenty matches. "I can't reach the entrance with these."

She began to call. She cried out: "God—oh, Mother of God—Father—" And she said to the child: "Pray—we must pray!" They sank down on their knees.

She thought, w[illegible] faintness again creepi[illegible] over her; with her thought sinking down again into that throbbing void: "We'll die—like this—we're dying now—" And she called on Richard—she called wildly: "Father—oh my father—"

"Pat—oh heart of God—Pat—it's you—YOU!"

Pat put her cheek against Billy's hot cheek. She said: "I'm mad—we've gone mad . . ."

Then she law light—a great golden light. Then she was lifted. Strong, mighty wings went under and lifted her body and the body of the child.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

He Who Lives Wisely Wins Badge of Youth

INSTEAD of obtaining good hair and a good complexion from Nature's store, we try to purchase all these at the chemist's.

DR COPELAND

Those who live wisely have no trouble with their digestion and other functions of the body. Proper nourishment, exercise and the out-of-doors supply them with purity and a vigorous circulation.

Hair, teeth and finger nails have the same physical origin. Their quality depends on the general health. The strength and permanence depend on the kind of heart you have and the consequent purity or impurity of the blood.

The scalp is supplied with blood, which comes upward from below. Spreading out in fanlike fashion the tiny blood vessels go to every part of the skin of the head. Every hair has its blood-vessel. The growth and strength of each individual hair depends upon an unfailing supply of blood.

Now, of course, if you have weak heart action, the heart does not send the same forceful stream of blood to this remote part of the body that it would if it were a strong functioning member. Perhaps you have observed that when you are a bit "run down" your hair is apt to fall out more than usual. If the scalp is not kept clean enough, the hair falls out.

Men should not wear tight, heavy hats if they want to escape baldness. If the head covering is tight the blood vessels are kept from sending the life-giving elements to the scalp. It is to be expected that there will be falling out of the hair.

The hair must be kept clean just as every other part of the body is. If the hair is oily, then frequent washing is necessary to keep the scalp in good condition. If the hair is dry apply a trifle of oil to the scalp.

We find that the blood stream carries nourishment to every cell of the body. Likewise, it carries away with it the waste of these cells. It is probable that the blood carries certain products of the glands of the body.

These wonderful glands, called the "ductless glands," are not yet completely understood, but we do know that their mission is very important. It is supposed that when one does not function properly it reacts on all of the others. Delayed action of one affects others. Among the effects of disturbed gland action are the marks of age, including gray hair.

Everybody wants to look young as he is. But let us not forge that while youth is a fine thing, gray hair is a badge of honor. It marks a man or woman as one who has "come to years of discretion," to be sure, but also it softens and makes beautiful the countenance, causing us to forget the lines of the face.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Hotel Entertaining

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. When one entertains at a dinner in a hotel, when all arrangements have been made beforehand, when does one tip the waiter or waitress? Also should one tip the head-waiter?

2. When does one set the place cards? G. R.

THE head-waiter should be tipped beforehand, when you consult him about the arrangements for your dinner. And, if possible, it is better to fee the waiter, too, beforehand. But this cannot always be done, as is possible in the case of the head-waiter. So usually you will find it convenient to have your fee all ready, and, when dinner is finished, hand the fee to the waiter, as unobtrusively as possible.

2. Beforehand. That is, have your table all ready before your guests enter the dining room.

Bridal Attendants

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Kindly advise me if it is permissible to have married men act as ushers at an evening wedding? S. F.

YES. Nowadays, when the bride chooses her attendants and the bridegroom chooses his, no distinction is made between unmarried and married friends. The only thing that counts is the fact that the person is a friend of either the bride or the bridegroom, or both. The fact that she or he is married makes no difference. And very wise it is, too.

Horoscopes

Sunday, January 12

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds little of promise or unusual interest outside of the normal activities of the Sabbath day.

Those whose birthday it is may not have a particularly unusual year, although routine interests may progress in a fairly orderly course. There should be proper attention given to making contracts, and speculation and the possibility of litigation should be avoided.

A child born on this day may have some very progressive qualities but should be taught to be careful in the handling of writings and letters and should be discouraged in the proclivity toward speculative enterprises.

Monday, January 13.

MONDAY'S astrological chart holds auguries of conflict and confusion. While new ventures are under favorable auspices and under good sway, yet Saturn and Uranus in unfriendly aspect with Luna, point to delays and unforeseen complications.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to encounter a year of conflicting circumstances, with new ventures and finances under encouraging rule, but with some phases of frustration to plans.

A child born on this day should have many gracious and kindly traits, with proclivities toward the singular or irregular, but may be called upon to carve its way by determination, patience and dogged industry.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

These Modern Lovers.

"NO man makes love like Romeo any more," sighs a woman writer. Alas, no—and if he should the girl would probably telephone for a psychoanalyst.

* * *

Nobody has so little patience with the follies of a young lover as the man who has just recovered from a foolish infatuation. And nobody can preach such an ardent sermon on prohibition as the man who is just recovering from a hangover.

* * *

No doubt the modern lover is more sincere than the flowery lovers of yesterday, but there are times when the Sphinx seems eloquent and Job seems positively impetuous beside him.

* * *

"Conscience" becomes a wonderful convenience when a man suddenly finds himself "unworthy" of a woman who is beginning to bore him.

* * *

A clever woman often wears her conscience on her sleeve so that it is almost as intriguing as a mourning band or a widow's veil.

* * *

You don't have to psychoanalyze yourself in order to discover whether you are really in love or only infatuated. When you are, you will know it as surely as you know when you've been hit by a taxi or when you've stepped into a manhole. But it will be too late to do anything about it.

* * *

The old-fashioned girl would have been horrified to kiss a man she didn't know; but nowadays a girl seems to think it spoils her record to know a man that she hasn't kissed.

MEGAPHONER WALTER LANG STAGGERS—NOT LIQUOR BUT BROKEN LEG

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 11.

WALTER LANG is a tall, husky chap who megaphones pictures for the Jimmy Cruze outfit. Walter went home to Memphis, Tenn., to spend the holidays with his folk. He stepped from the train onto an icy platform and promptly staggered. His mother nearly wept. She had heard about Hollywood and suspicioned it had gotten her son. Whereupon Walter hastily explained. Seemed when he packed his wardrobe trunk and tried to close it, he couldn't. So he attempted to kick it shut and injured his leg. He just had time to have the leg X-rayed and make the train. The X-ray negative was still wet from the developing room and when Walter looked at it showed the leg had suffered no fracture. But it hurt and he could hardly navigate. Imagine his chagrin when he returned to town to learn his leg was really fractured. The doctor had either neglected to wire him this information or else had wired to the wrong address. Even so, Walter had a lot of fast talking to do ter hum!

Lois Moran

Congratulations to Lois Moran. Lois wrote a story whilst vacationing in the Yosemite some weeks ago. She found the courage to send it to a magazine. And did. Excelsior! It was accepted. And Lois is prouder than Punch. The title of her original effort is "Kisses." College Humor scribbled the check for it.

Mud And Beard For "Art's" Sake

RUSSELL GLEASON must be dithering over this art racket. Russell is playing a featured role in Universal's "All Quiet on the Western Front." The picture has reached the front stage. Universal has issued a flat order: "No finger nails to be cleaned for three weeks." That is enough to isolate young Gleason socially. That and the beard now bushing his face. When he gets home from the studio come nightfall or midnight, he's so grimed from having rolled in the mud (atmospheric realism) that he enters the house by way of the kitchen.

CORINNE GRIFFITH pulled a quickee 'tother day on the "Back Pay" set. The scene opens with Grant Withers in bed. Grant has returned from the war, blinded and otherwise injured. Corinne nurses him. Grant is a petulant invalid. Corinne upbraids him lightly, with:

Corrine Griffith

"I don't like that line, John.

"What do you mean by a sound breakfast?"

Selling Marx Boys To Movies

THE following is sworn to be true. Two years ago, Walter Meyers and William Perlberg, Hollywood booking agents, sent the moguls of Paramount a box of cocoanuts, with a note: "You can't miss this!" The exeks savvied. They called the agents and signed up the Four Marx Brothers.

Recently, Meyers and Perlberg sent the same producers a package of animal crackers, with a card attached: "Another great bet for you!" It worked. The four Marx brothers have signed a contract to produce "Animal Crackers" for Paramount as soon as they finish their current stage tour in this funfest.

Lee Tracy.

Lee (Big Time) Tracy is back in town. Lee is scheduled to make another outloud for Fox. Be that as it may, he trailed into the Fox restaurant 'tother noon and reached for a menu.

"I don't quite understand this," calling the waitress' attention to an item reading: "Ham, spareribs and sauerkraut."

"That means that the spareribs are optional," she explained.

"My heavens," ejaculated Tracy. "Are they giving spareribs options, too?"

MADDEN LEAVES TWO MILLIONS

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 11.—(AP.)—The will of John E. Madden, millionaire horseman who died in New York City November 3, 1929, was filed for probate here.

Mr. Madden left the bulk of his estate, estimated at approximately $2,000,000 to two sons, John E. Madden, Jr., and Joseph M. Madden, who qualified as executors and trustees. He left $125,000 in trust for two nieces, Cecilia and Catherine McTearn, his secretary, Miss Daisy Proctor, and a number of his friends, particularly horsemen, were left $1,000 bequests.

The will provides that W. Rodes Estill, a neighbor of Mr. Madden, be given any trotting horses from the Madden stable that "he may desire for his own use."

The will expressly stated that Sir Martin, thoroughbred sire and an especial favorite of Mr. Madden, should not be sold but retained on his estate, Hamburg Place. Sir Martin is the only American horse ever made a favorite in the English derby, and was leading in that event until it fell on the stretch turn.

New Picture

Mr. Rockefeller Appearing In News Reel

John D. Rockefeller, the world's richest man, who at 90 years old has given away over $600,000,000 to public benefactions, has finally succumbed to the lure of the talking motion pictures. After two years of effort, C. E. Engelbrecht, of the Fox-Hearst Corporation, induced Mr. Rockefeller to pose before the camera and talk into the microphone for the first time for Hearst Metrotone News.

The Standard Oil Company yesterday celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of its existence at Cleveland. Mr. Rockefeller, as is his custom, is spending the winter at Ormond Beach, Fla., and could not brave the change in temperature to attend the Cleveland celebration in person, so it was arranged for him to appear through the medium of the talking motion pictures. The negative was made at Ormond Beach on Monday and hurried to New York, where a print was turned out and sent by airmail to Cleveland. It was shown at the gathering of the executives of the Standard Oil Company in that city, and simultaneously in the Embassy, The Newsreel Theater in New York City, as part of the new program.

Flannery Elected Travelers Aid Head

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—J. Rogers Flannery, of Pittsburgh, was elected president of the National Association of Travelers' Aid Societies at a meeting in the organization's headquarters yesterday. Marcus L. Bell, of New York, retiring president, was named vice president.

Naturalist to Give Talk to Children

Norman McClintock, a life-long resident of this city, is scheduled to give a children's lecture this afternoon in the Carnegie Music Lecture Hall. His subject will be "Beast, Bird or Fish." For the last four years he has been photo-naturalist at the University of Pittsburgh.

County Osteopaths Choose Officers

Dr. Frank L. Goehring was elected president of the Allegheny County Osteopathic Society at a meeting in the Congress of Women's Clubs. Dr. Charles E. Young was elected vice president and Dr. Walter P. Spill was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

PARENTS GAD ABOUT IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

The usual order of things is reversed in the talk film, "The Marriage Playground," which opened yesterday in the Stanley. Instead of gray-haired parents sitting by the hearthstone while the children are running wild, it is the children who stay at home while pap and mama chase all over the place—from one gay European resort to another.

The theme concerns an older sister's efforts to keep together an aggregation of six younger brothers and sisters. Into this comes a phase of romance when the older sisters meets and falls in love with a man who was a college chum of her father.

BRIAN AND MARCH

Mary Brian portrays the sister—portrays her well in lighter moments and not so well under stress of tears or emotion. Frederic March appears as the hero. The children include Phillippe De Lacy, Huntley Gordon and Lilyan Tashman register as thrill-hunting, cocktail-drinking parents. Other players are Kay Francis, vampish as ever, and Seena Owen, whom we haven't seen for a long time, or heard before.

AIMS AT BOX OFFICE

The production is based on Edith Wharton's novel, "The Children," which, to some extent, is a victim of the "freedom of the screen." However, the movie-makers, aiming at the box office, as the title change to "The Marriage Playground" indicates, have succeeded in making a talkie with just such an appeal.

A second Warner-Publix show is on the stage. It is titled "Match Box Revue" and its biggest imported features are a collection of performing dogs and Bayes and Speck, two comedians as funny as they come. Master of Ceremonies Powell is prominent as usual.

Bernie Armstrong failed to bob up at the opening performance yesterday but David Broudy was there with his orchestra and overture.

MAYVIEW WATER WORKS O. K.'D

Council has authorized a contract for a water works plant costing about $50,000 for the City Home and Hospital at Mayview with the objective of saving a $36,000 yearly water bill for the institution.

Lieut. Col. Sidney A. Hegerling, associate of Col. Eric Fisher Woods, architect for the Mayview building program, advised Council yesterday that wells could be drilled and a reservoir constructed for $42,500 and that a softening plant would cost an additional $7,500. The plant would have a capacity of 400,000 gallons a day.

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt and E. E. Lanpher, managing engineer of the City Water Bureau, were requested by Council to consult Col. Hagerling in the awarding of a contract.

Public Works Director Edward G. Lang yesterday stopped all public work in the former borough of Overbrook until the legality of agreements with contractors can be determined.

Council was advised that the borough had awarded 35 contracts, totaling $500,000, after the borough's debt limit had been exceeded by $23,000.

Tom M. Reed, assistant city engineer, ordered all contractors to refrain from doing any work until advised to proceed by the City Department of Public Works.

Council has set up a fund of $5,460 for the employment of 10 temporary smoke inspectors until April 1 to be selected by H. B. Meller, superintendent of the city's Smoke Regulation Bureau.

The employes will be selected from engineering classes at University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech. They will work four hours a day for seven days a week at 75 cents an hour.

STOCK, FILMS MAGIC ON BILLS

Howard Thurston and his daughter, Jane, will continue next week as the attraction in the Alvin, Monday, January 20. "A Night in Venice" will come to the theater for a return engagement.

Monday night will inaugurate the week's engagement of the George Sharp Players in the comedy, "The Nut Farm." The play recently has been released for stock after runs in Chicago and New York with Wallace Ford in the featured role.

"Dynamite," which comes to the Penn Monday, is the fifty-fifth picture of Cecil B. De Mille, but it is his first talking production and his first for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release. It is a romance of an heiress and a coal miner. The cast includes Conrad Nagel, Kay Johnson, Charles Bickford and Julia Faye.

NEW PICTURES TODAY

"Jazz Heaven," with John Mack Brown and Sally O'Neil, opens on the Harris screen today. The bill also includes a stage show with Victor Graff continuing as master of ceremonies.

Lucien Littlefield is noted for his comic characterization wherever motion pictures are shown. In "Seven Keys to Baldpate," opening today in the R-K-O Sheridan Square, he enacts the role of a grafting railroad official. Richard Dix is starred.

"SALLY" HELD OVER

Marilyn Miller is supported by Alexander Gray, Joe E. Brown, Pert Kelton and many others in the all-color, talking screen version of her stage success "Sally," which is being seen in the Warner for a second week.

Home towns are one thing that Janet Gaynor, co-featured with Charles Farrell in "Sunny Side Up," movie musical comedy, has plenty of. Miss Gaynor was born in Philadelphia and attended school there until she was 8. Then her family removed to Chicago, where Janet finished school, finally completing her course at San Francisco. Now she and her family reside in Beverly Hills. "Sunny Side Up" comes to the Aldine Monday.

DIVORCE JURY IS ASKED

Peter Zilk, 59, of 10 Curtin street, who says he transferred $24,000 of his real estate to his wife, H. Yolanda Zilk, 59, of 604 Industry street, suing him for divorce, wants a trial by jury.

This was revealed in Common Pleas Court, when his counsel Frank I. Gosser and Carl W. Brueck obtained a rule on the libellant to show cause why the husband's prayer should not be granted. It has been years since a divorce case has been heard by jury in this county.

The couple were wed in 1892. Mrs. Zilk recently filed a libel in divorce charging her husband with cruel and barbarous treatment. She alleges Zilk struck her and otherwise hurt her.

Zilk filed an answer denying he had abused his wife or threatened to kill her. He avers that he transferred four houses in Curtin street to his wife and that her only purpose in asking a divorce is to cheat and defraud him of the property. He claims that he transferred the property to his wife after constant quarreling and nagging.

Delmont Man Killed When Hit by Auto

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Frank Marak, 45, of Delmont, near here, was killed last night when he was run down by an automobile at the White Valley school house, between Delmont and Export. The car was driven by Donald Stark, of Export, police reported.

Bentleyville Miner Killed in Accident

Film Hero

Frederic March has the hero role in "The Marriage Playground," talkie which opened yesterday in the Stanley.

Mayor, Governor Laud R-K-O Pictures

The R-K-O Sheridan Square, celebrating January Good Times Jubilee Month and the R-K-O first anniversary, was commended for the standard of entertainment maintained in Pittsburgh, by Gov. John S. Fisher, in a letter made public yesterday.

Mayor Charles H. Kline sent a congratulatory letter to Hiram S. Brown, president of the R-K-O. "If this high-class entertainment is maintained I know that it will appeal to the people of our city," wrote the Mayor.

All of the R-K-O theaters from coast to coast are pledged to aid President Hoover's campaign of prosperity and continued good times. Although but a year old R-K-O has formed a large chain of theaters and have produced many talking films, including "Rio Rita," "Hit the Deck" and "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

MIRTH FILM IN ENRIGHT IS GOOD

By grace of Vitaphone, the Enright offers a good screen feature attraction this week under the name of "This Thing Called Love," from the play of the same title. "Sparkling wit," as the promoters would call it, sparkles and froths through a movie which attempts to solve the problem of unhappy marriages. Constance Bennett is given the job of being wife to Edmund Lowe, salary $25,000 per year, plus living expenses. She would eliminate overtime by making the match purely platonic. A "glorified housekeeper," the script makes Mr. Lowe call her.

But, of course, they're born in love. This idea of being wife and husband, while each openly seeks to find romantic thrills elsewhere, isn't so good, they discover.

Technically, the production is poor. The impression given is of two animated images stuck in a frame—a frame that doesn't often change.

On the stage Jay Mills does himself proud in a dancing skit with Betty Veronica and Colby and Murphy, boy-and-girl team. The chorus, outside and inside of that particular scene, again is the mainstay of the stage show. Especially did the chorus do a good job on "The Song of the Jungle." Ferry Corway, clown, clicked. Audience singing, with poor songs and Jimmy Orner, was a success.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: The luxurious apartment of a wealthy Pittsburgher was damaged by fire the other day. In the fire, a picture valued by its owner at $75,000, was destroyed. If you were a millionaire, would you give $75,000 for a painting?

Mrs. Greene.

MRS. DELLE GREENE, North Side, housewife: "If it was something I wanted, sure I would. That's not extravagance. It's encouraging people to make more beautiful things to lighten up a dreary world.

Miss Patany.

JEWEL PATANY, downtown student: "Well, I would if I could afford it. It would be nice to decorate a home although it's a little high, I guess. But it keeps the money moving, doesn't it?"

James Hughes.

JAMES HUGHES, Oakland, program announcer: "I would if I liked the picture. It seems to be the custom for millionaires to help out poor artists. If this picture was some masterpiece, I would buy it and donate it to Carnegie Museum, so the general public could see it and form their own opinion on why it was worth $75,000.

Miss Henderson

G. VIOLA HENDERSON, McKees Rocks, cashier: "I think I could put it to better advantage for charity, education, and lots of things. Why, that's just the same as hanging $75,000 on the wall. It's wasteful for a private individual to pay that much for a painting."

Mrs. Wilson.

MRS. E. F. WILSON, 6904 Thomas boulevard, housewife: "Yes, I would if I could see the valuation and liked the painting well enough. I certainly would. There is no background for your home and your life like fine paintings. The valuation would not necessarily be as high as that, either, if I liked it. It's the price of pleasure, and if I were a millionaire, I'd be willing to pay the price. But maybe that's because I have a passion for fine paintings, anyhow.

C. W. Kramer.

C. W. KRAMER, Bridgeville, plant service foreman: "It all depends upon the picture I'd think about it a lot, first, I'll tell you that. Well, if I liked it, I guess I might. But you can be mighty sure it wouldn't be my last $75,000 if I did."

Will Rogers Says:

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.

IT seemed like old times to hear Mr. Coolidge quoting statistics over the "rodeo." No man can quote figures like he can. And he always pulls a new one for us. Since the Wall Street crash, which the Republicans refer to as a "business re-adjustment," prominent men have done nothing but tell us of the strength of the country.

Steel was "strong," A. T. and T. was "strong," radio was "strong," breath was "strong." We have been "stronged" to death in speeches and statements, but Mr. Coolidge said, "the heart of the American people is strong" and here over five hundred died of heart failure during the late "Republican re-adjustment."

What he really meant was that "the American public's head is strong, but his heart is weak."

Yours for true statistics,

WILL.

Eddie Cantor Rises to Say:

PHILADELPHIA, Jan 11.

HOOVER has just created a new position for Warren Delano Robbins. This gentleman will act as "master of ceremonies" at all Washington social functions. He is the first m. of c. without a jazz band.

I can just hear him introducing the Vice President's sister, "Folks, here comes Dolly Gann, give this little girl a great big hand."

He is also supposed to advise Mrs. Hoover as to who should be invited and where they are to be seated.

Mr. Robbins, my advice to you is to have your evening clothes made with bullet proof vests.

Sideny D. Waldon, of the Detroit Rapid Transit Commission, predicts for this country 71,000,000 automobiles by 1990. By that time there won't be any fun driving, for there will be no pedestrians left to bump.

Gov. Ritchie, of Maryland, is alarmed at the new disease, "parrot fever." It can't be serious because many of our congressmen have had it for years.

MASTEN FINDS CONDITIONS SOUND

Senior Partner in Firm Here Sees Better Times Ahead in the New Year

Financial conditions are sound and those who are most capable of directing our affairs are pursuing their ways upon this basis to make certain of good times, Fred C. Masten, senior partner of A. E. Masten & Co., said in commenting on the prospects for 1930.

The firm of A. E. Masten & Co. has come into its thirty-ninth year without any change in its name. It still has the services of employes extending over 33 years.

Among the five New York correspondents with whom it is connected by private wires, there are those that have maintained this relationship for more than 30 years. It has at this time the following New York Stock Exchange correspondents: Logan & Bryan, J. S. Bache & Co., W. J. Wollman & Co., Otis & Co., and Abbott, Hoppin & Co.

TWO OFFICES

The firm has two offices, one in the Koppers Building at Seventh avenue and Grant street, and the other in the Vandergrift Building at 423 Fourth avenue, which has been in existence for 28 years.

The offices in the Koppers Building face the plot of ground across the street where the Gulf Oil Corporation will erect an imposing building to house its extensive interests. The new Federal Reserve Bank will also be the Gulf Oil Corporation's next door neighbor. Such projects surely comprehend a sturdy confidence in not only the immediate future progress of Pittsburgh, but also means intelligent confidence in the general prosperity of our country continuing for some time to come.

In talking of the coming year Mr. Masten said:

"The year 1929 was truly a remarkable one in many respects; among them, the large earnings shown by our industries, consolidations and new ventures in the formation of great investment trusts and tremendous speculation. Along with these changes come substantial evidence that business has reached a higher plane of ethics, largely through the means of co-operation. We are, of course, not unmindful that there have been many fatalities occuring in individual enterprises in the smaller retail business and this phase of change in our affairs will, no doubt, have to be reckoned with later.

BREAK UNEXPECTED

"If someone had had the temerity one year ago to have said that in a couple of short weeks during 1929 the prices of securities which had advanced in many instances to inordinate heights, would suddenly have been cut in half, he undoubtedly would have been greeted with howls of derision, yet at the same time, those of long experience were apprehensive that something might occur of a sobering character, but no one dreamed that it would come with a precipitous decline or the volume of trading in securities reach such colossal figures as happened.

"Bankers and brokers had been exerting much foresight and care to avert, or more properly, soften just what did happen in so short a time; prices of stocks were cut in two, not because the companies were not prosperous and many of them increasing their dividends as the months passed by; they had no unwieldy inventories to contend with that had severely depreciated. There was an abundance of capital available, but the companies were not pressed for this and aside from the tremendous volume of speculation, much of which was unintelligent, the sky was fairly clear. Many companies were so strong in cash that they had loaned enormous sums of money at very profitable rates on the safest kind of paper, that is, loans secured by marketable collateral. The corporations were keeping their resources liquid as some of them had large programs outlined which would require great sums of money that they might increase their service and cheapen cost of production, which spells increased earnings.

CONDITIONS SOUND

"As startling as the decline in stock prices was, it needs to be said that had there been anything substantially wrong with fundamental economic conditions, there would have been an absence of the celerity and unanimity of influence, wealth and brains that immediately threw themselves into the breach in the last of October and throughout November. There has been considerable of poking fun at our President for having instituted a 'sunshine movement,' but it is becoming more apparent that his appreciation of the value of psychology to counteract cases where mob psychology prevails, and being strongly supported by the ablest of industrial, financial men, the situation has been very materially changed. It only required such an effort at the right time to produce the reverse of the gloom that came from the panicstricken security holders and efforts of such men being predicated on the most patent factor influencing the human mind, the 'sunshine movement' has shown comforting results.

"Many lines could be written why one should expect 1930 to be a prosperous year, but a couple should be sufficient."

"Financial conditions are sound and those who are most capable of directing our affairs are pursuing their ways upon this basis to make and sustain good times. There are enormous sums of money waiting to improve railroad transportation, new building, new road building, power and electrical projects. This money will be spent because there is no fright among those who have the direction of these projects. Those whose memory in the stock market goes back to 1907, marvel at the different manner in which the market was handled in October and November of 1929. There was not an important financial fatality resulting among banks or brokers. We have referred in the beginning to the spirit of co-operation, and to many this word is so commonplace that it is descried. Nevertheless, that was one of the most substantial factors in stemming the hysteria which prevailed through this period. This, of course, was aided by the very much improved banking system and the strict supervision by the New York Stock Exchange of its members' affairs, all of which point to the fact that business generally is rising to a higher plane and theories changing with them. I again reiterate that I do not see a serious dark cloud on the business horizon at the beginning of this year."

Receiver Appointed For U. S. Worsted

BOSTON, Jan. 11.—Judge Cox in equity session of Superior Court appointed B. Loring Young as receiver of the United States Worsted Company, which failed to pay interest on debenture bonds issued by the Worsted company in 1923. The Old Colony Trust Company recovered a judgment of $3,463,024 against the Worsted company which it failed to pay. Mr. Young was authorized to continue the business.

DEPENDENTS IN U. S. MANY

It is estimated, as the result of a recent exhaustive survey, that 2,000,000 persons in the United States over 65 years of age are partly or wholly dependent for support on other individuals or agencies. This represents about one-third of the aged population of the country. Only a small proportion is under the care of organized philanthropy. The vast majority is dependent in part or entirely upon children and relatives.

In 1925 there were 85,889 inmates in poorhouses, which occupied 345,480 acres of land, of which 53.3 per cent or 184,187 acres were under cultivation. The total value of these poor farms, with buildings and equipment, was $150,485,231. This represents an average of 4.02 acres of land for each inmate and a per capita investment of $1,752.09.

The total maintenance cost of all institutions amounted to $28,740,535, or an average of $334.64 for each inmate, exclusive of the investment involved. If 6 per cent interest on the investment and depreciation is added, the support of an almshouse inmate in the United States costs an average of $439.76 a year. According to latest reports, the average cost of an almshouse inmate 65 years of age and over in Massachusettes, including interest on the investment, was $10.23 per week.

FEW WEALTHY

When we realize from insurance estimates that out of 100 young men starting at 25 years of age, 36 will die before reaching 65 and of the 64 living at 65, one will be wealthy, four well-to-do, five just able to get along and 54 dependent upon children or charity, the necessity for teaching thrift during the earning period and for establishing trust funds which cannot be dissipated by speculation, extravagance or wastefulness for protection in old age is apparent.

Every normal young man has the ambition to succeed and become independent. Few appreciate that the sure road lies in careful expenditures and in consistent saving. Most young men have no thought or fear of the future. Many prosper for a time, spend their money freely, make no provision for later life when earning power has gone, and end their days in dependence, whereas if they had saved and placed their savings in trust funds beyond their temptations, a different story could be told. The lesson applies to rich as well as those in moderate circumstances.

The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh is issuing a free booklet "Problems That Confront Your Estate," which gives the various methods used in conserving the accumulations of years by creating trusts for the individual's own protection and that of his family.

GROWTH SHOWN BY BENOLITE VARNISH

Organization Formed in 1908 Was Pioneer in Electrical Insulation

Leading electrical equipment manufacturers in the United States and foreign countries are numbered among the steadily expanding list of suctomers of the Benolite Varnish Company

The organization was formed in 1908 as the Benolite Company, Inc., and was one of two pioneer insulating varnish companies.

At the time of the organization the the Benolite Company, Inc., G. A. Benney, Sr., its founder, formulated a code of business ethics which have guided the company through 21 years of success.

Realizing the importance of the electrical field and its pending developments, Mr. Benney appreciated the need for adequate insulating varnishes and compounds. His contribution to the rapidly growing electrical industry was the development of formulae for the manufacture of high class varnishes and compounds which protect and prolong the successful performance of electrical equipment.

SMALL START

Starting in a small way, the Benolite Company grew and expanded until today it is recognized as one of the largest and outstanding manufacturers of insulating varnishes and compounds.

After the decease of G. A. Benney, Sr., in 1924, the responsibilities of the growing business were assumed by his two sons, G. A. Benney, Jr., and M. C. Benney, who continued the business along the same principles as laid down by the founder.

In July, 1929, the company was reorganized and its name changed to the Benolite Varnish Company. To meet the demands of the growing business, the capitalization was greatly increased and the personnel was enlarged.

MANY USERS

The success of the Benolite Varnish Company is measured, not so much by total sales, but by the wide distribution of its products and the large list of satisfied customers. Among the users of Benolite products are some of the largest electrical manufacturers in the United States. A great number of foreign manufacturers all over the world avail themselves of Benolite protection.

Another contributing factor in the popularity of Benolite products, is that they are developed and made by men who, from practical experience, know what is required in the electrical field. These men have devoted a great many years to the study of the electrical field from an insulation standpoint. Manufactured under engineering supervision, controlled by well-equipped laboratories, made from thoroughly tested raw materials, is the guaranteed standard of quality of Benolite Varnishes and Compounds.

The personnel of the Benolite Varnish Company includes G. A. Benney, president and treasurer; T. J. Schrimser, vice president and factory manager; O. V. Stewart, vice president and sales manager, and M. C. Benney, secretary.

Blaw-Knox Sales Gain Expected By Lehman

The four-day convention of the Blaw-Knox Company comes to a close today. The meetings are being attended by the sales force and sales executives from all departments, including both branch and main offices as well as export representatives from South America.

Albert C. Lehman, president, in addressing representative presented figures covering the total sales of the company for 1929, showing a large increase over those of the preceding year. Selling plans were also set forth for 1930 in expectation of a large increase in sales over those of the present year, due in part to the big national construction program which is being contemplated. Mr. Lehman predicts that the year 1930 will be the largest year of the Blaw-Knox Company.

RETAIL TRADE REMAINS DULL

Clearance Sales Form Bulk of Volume With Little Jobbing Activity

The usual dullness prevailing after the holidays continues in both wholesale and retail circles, buying being very light, and many of the dealers being busy with inventories, according to R. G. Dun & Co.

Retailers are not handling much business aside from clearance sales which appear to be producing moderate results. Jobbers report such buying as there is being almost entirely for filling in purposes and advance orders are very small. Travelers have not, as a rule, started on the road and little improvement is expected before the fifteenth of the month.

YEAR GOOD

While the year 1929 was phenominal in many respects and production in most lines maintained a higher than normal rate throughout the year until October, there was a very sharp falling off in the last two months of the year. December, in particular, registered a sharp decline. Bank clearings during 1929 exceeded $10,000,000,000 for the first time, December being the only month to fall below the corresponding month of 1929.

Building construction did not, however, equal the 1928 total, the number of permits issued in 1929 totaling 6,143, compared with 7,061 in 1928, and the estimated cost in 1929 was $36,174,512, as compared with $40,254,060 in 1928. Permits for new buildings in 1929 were nearly $7,000,000 less with permits for alterations over $2,000,000 higher, with additions and extensions about $500,000 higher. A number of large buildings are in prospect for this year and a fair volume of construction work is anticipated.

OUTPUT GAINS

Some improvement in the rate of operations of steel plants has taken place since the first of the year, the average rate of operation now being placed close to 60 per cent, with orders beginning to come in more freely. Plate glass production is still in excess of demand, but some improvement is noted. Window glass production continues low and demand is slow. Electrical equipment producers are operating at a very fair rate with demand holding up quite well. Crude oil production shows considerable increase, and stocks of gasoline are also growing.

Demand for bituminous coal continues very slow, but production is at about the average rate which has prevailed of late. Western Pennsylvania grades of run-of-mine coal are quoted per net ton at mines as follows: Steam coal, $1.25 to $1.75; coking coal, $1.50 to $1.75; gas coal, $1.65 to $1.75; steam slack, 80 to 90 cents, and gas slack, $1 to $1.10.

GOES TO SALES CONFERENCE

M. Sobel, manager of the Pittsburgh store of the Richman Brothers Company, has been invited to attend a sales conference at the company's general offices and factory in Cleveland, January 13 and 14. Managers of 40 stores, together with leading sales agents from all parts of the country, have been called to this meeting to discuss sales plans for 1930.

The sessions will be under the direction of Carl Felder, general sales manager; N. G. Richman; Charles L. Richman, president; Henry C. Richman, secretary and treasurer; F. C. Lewman, vice president; R. H. Kohn, vice president, and other officials of the company will address the meetings and take part in the discussion.

The Richman Brothers Company has just completed the most successful year in its history, and has made plans for still greater expansion this year, according to Sobel.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

JANUARY STEEL OUTLOOK VAGUE

Increase in Backlog of Steel Corporation Is Unfavorable Factor

By B. E. V. LUTY.

Production of Bessemer and open-hearth steel ingots in December is reported at 59.07 per cent of capacity, which is somewhat above the average of estimates made late in the month. It will not be easy for January to show the usual seasonal gain over December, which in the last eight years has averaged 12 per cent, while furthermore, when December production was light, as it was last month, January showed a percentage gain above the average.

With Bessemer and open-hearth reported monthly and an allowance for electric and crucible, total steel ingot production last year was about 54,700,000 tons, or 9 per cent over 1928, but that is not illuminating as neither of the years was consistent, 1928 having an unusually good second half while the first nine months of last year were exceptional.

INGOT OUTPUT DECLINE

The important point is that the bulge was such as to make production in the 12 months through September about 56,750,000 tons, which was 21 per cent above 1926, a very good year in its time, but only 15 per cent over 1920, six years earlier. The very high production in the recent period was altogether exceptional and cannot possibly be regarded as any sort of a standard. If this year could show 50,000,000 tons, it would be classifiable as quite a good year by any long range comparison and there is little likelihood that it will show 50,000,000 tons.

Both steel ingot and pig iron production decreased 14 per cent from November to December. Usually when there is a decrease it is greater in steel. The Iron Age pig iron report for December shows 20 furnaces banked or blown out and none put in, which is very unusual. This worked out into capacity in blast January 1 being under average production during December. This is quite unusual for the time of year and does not augur well for steel production this month.

TRADE PROSPECTS

The actual fact is that general trade prospects are being exaggerated in nearly all quarters, creating relatively favorable impressions which are certain to be disappointing in the next few weeks. That is no unusual experience, it should be remembered, for even in good years more has sometimes been predicted than was realized. About February 1, 1926, there was no little disappointment; yet the year was really a good one. This time efforts to create favorable "sentiment" have been much greater.

The steel producers nurse no illusions on the subject thus exhibiting the intelligence for which they are noted; their silence is politeness to those who make rosy predictions. When steel producers predict a good average year, they are not indicating the amount of tonnage the public might infer from some of the general trade predictions made elsewhere.

STEEL SUPPORT

Steel production at the present time is supported chiefly by lines that were already active. In lines that were not active in December, there is some improvement; but not much. Rails are booked for the half year as well as usual, but on account of early buying in the regular seasonal movement, there was heavier production last month than usual. Freight car shops are operating almost as well as their average in the last nine months and there are predictions of a fair volume of car buying in future. Somewhat similar predictions a couple months ago have not fully eventuated. The structural fabricating shops are very well booked and are taking steel as formerly. It is probably only an incident that in the past week very little structural business has been reported as closed. The farm implement factories are working well as they have been.

Reports of improvement in the automobile industry are quite misleading as to any substantial tonnage of steel being involved. Last month's automobile production was only about 125,000, a trifle under one-fifth the peak production of April and a trifle over one-fifth the monthly average in the first half of the year. Even this small December production is thought to have been accomplished largely by using stocks of steel and parts. Thus the automobile industry could double or triple its steel buying and still not take a substantial tonnage.

U. S. STEEL ORDERS

The Steel Corporation's statement of unfilled obligations, showing 291,848 tons increase during December, is not favorable, but it is less unfavorable than might have been expected in the circumstances. There were rail orders and tin plate contracts largely in excess of shipments, accounting for the entire increase, and leaving a net decrease in other steel products, whereas ordinarily there is such contracting in December, for first quarter, as to contribute to the increase.

For the fourth quarter, there was an increase of 514,612 tons in unfilled obligations, and the excess of rail orders over rail shipments was probably in excess of that amount. The rail business is not significant of trade conditions as it is routine, coming every year.

PRICE DECLINES

Two months ago hopes were entertained that the finished steel price structure as it existed then, after a few small declines, would hold. It seemed easier for mills to hold familiar prices than to hold new and lower prices. With one slip after another in open market quotations, and unusual concessions in lines that are nominally unchanged, there are really only two major products, rails and pipe, that have held entirely. Standard rails rarely change and as pipe mill operations have lately averaged under 40 per cent there is no particular significance in prices holding. All descriptions of sheets have slipped more or less, tin plate had a decline at an altogether unusual time, strips are off $2 a ton except on carloads and other small lots, and bars, shapes and plates are being shaded in the East.

On small purchases of select heavy melting steel scrap the Pittsburgh district market has advanced $1 a ton, but the advance is not significant as to general trade conditions. Eastern Pennsylvania and Chicago have shown no particular change.

Plans To Extend Standards Use

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The expenditure of nearly a half million dollars during the next three years for the establishment and adoption of authoritative national industrial standards for nearly all industries has been announced by William J. Serrill, president of the American Standards Association. This fund, underwritten by a large group of industrial organizations, represents the most important effort to extend the benefits of industrial standardization to producers, distributors, and consumers, which has been made since the founding of the American Standards Association in 1918.

The underwriting was arranged by a group of leading industrial executives consisting of James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation; Gerald Swope, president of the General Electric Company; George B. Cortelyou, president of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York, and F. A. Merrick, president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

Western Union Share Split Hinted

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The Western Union Telegraph Company probably will show around $16 a share for 1929 on 1,023,781 shares outstanding, against $15.10 in 1928.

Western Union shares are widely held. High prices obtaining for the stock have not made for increasing the stockholders' list. It is thought probable that the wish of some of the directors that the stock be split will meet with greater favor from the management, although hitherto it was definitely opposed to such action.

U. S. & Foreign Shows Record Income

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE United States and Foreign Securities Corporation, one of the pioneer investment trust organizations in this country, has reported record earnings for 1929 in spite of the drastic condition of the stock market in the final months of the year. The company is one of the few investment trust organizations to show such results.

Net income for 1929 was $11,710,089 compared with $7,652,887 in the preceding year. This was equivalent to $9.91 a share on 1,000,000 shares of common stock after deducting dividends on the preferred stock. In 1928 net income was equivalent to $5.85 a share against $1.39 in 1927 and $1.56 in 1926.

At the end of the year securities held were worth $8,342,682 in excess of their original cost. The balance sheet shows holdings with an aggregate value of $41,684,315 compared with a cost of $33,341,532.

Security Income Gains

PROFITS from dividends and interest on securities held have been showing a steady gain. Last year this amounted to $2,452,264 which was substantially in excess of dividend requirements on the first and second preferred stocks.

This figure compared with $1,938,566 in 1928, with $1,760,781 in 1927 and with $1,557,853 in 1926. While the bulk of the company's income has been secured from profits taken in the sale of securities the actual return on investments held has been showing a very satisfactory rate of gain. The policy of the company is not to include stock dividends as part of earnings.

Position Liquid

APPARENTLY the United States and Foreign Securities Corporation had a very large share of its resources in liquid form at the time of the break. The balance sheet of December 31, 1929, shows cash and call loans receivable of $20,538,430. This compared with only $171,780 at the end of 1928.

The fact that profits appear to have been taken on many securities at high prices during the past year now places the company in a very favorable position to buy when market conditions are again favorable.

While the company has made substantial profits on the sale of holdings, officials state that it was not organized with the idea of creating a strictly trading organization and that their principal efforts are being devoted to building up income from investments.

Publishes Holdings

THE company was the first of the large investment trusts to follow the practice of making complete lists of its holdings public. The annual report just published again discloses full details of securities owned.

An analysis of the holdings at the end of the year reveals that railroad stocks comprise almost a third of the total, their aggregate market value exceeding $12,300,000. The investment portfolio also includes approximately $9,000,000 in bank stocks, $6,000,000 in industrial shares and $2,000,000 in public utility stocks.

United States and Foreign has an investment of $9,304,965, at cost, in the second preferred and common stocks of the United States and International Securities Corporation.

Mineral Waste to Be Studied Soon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11. — A study designed to check the present waste of mineral resources due to over-production in the industry has been initiated by the American Mining Congress. This action was taken at a meeting of the board of directors in accordance with a resolution adopted at its convention in this city last month. The investigation will be conducted by the following committee representing the various branches of the mining industry:

Clinton H. Crane of the St. Joseph Lead Company, of New York; Ralph M. Roosevelt of the American Zinc Institute of New York; C. E. Bockus of the National Coal Association of New York; F. H. Brownell of the American Smelting and Refining Company, of New York; S. L. Mather, of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company, of Cleveland; S. D. Warriner of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, of Philadelphia, and E. B. Reeser of the American Petroleum Institute of Tulsa.

Algoma Steel Corp. Gets Rail Order

MONTREAL, Jan. 11.—Algoma Steel Corporation has received a substantial order for rails from Canadian Pacific Railway. Merchant mill, which resumed December 16 after being idle while new equipment was being installed in order to double capacity, continues in full operation.

Over 8,000 Towns Get Roof Air Markings

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—More than 8,000 towns of from 1,000 to 10,000 population have identified themselves by proper roof markings as an aid to aerial commerce, according to a final report of the roof marking campaign just compiled by the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics. The campaign was recommended by Capt. Emory S. Land shortly after assuming his duties as vice president of the fund and was conducted by Milburn Kusterer until its completion December 31.

As a result of the Fund's efforts, 4,074 towns and cities which previously were not identified have reported that they now have proper and adequate roof markings. Nearly 2,000 other communities are now completing identification and another 2,000 reported that they had proper identification signs previous to the inauguration of the campaign in October, 1928.

STOCK MARKET PRICES TURN DOWNWARD

Shares Open Irregular, Then Head Lower Under Bear Pressure Renewal

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP.) — The stock market opened with price trends irregular and movements largely narrow today. Union Pacific mounted 2 points, Lambert 7/8, Electric Auto Lite 3/4, International Nickel 5/8. American Telephone and Columbia Gas each lost 3/4. Hudson Motor and American Sugar about 1/2 and Westinghouse Electric 3/8.

Week-end liquidation and renewal of bearish pressure turned the whole market downward before the end of the first half hour, several important shares showing losses of 1 to 4 points.

Overnight news was not of sufficient significance to influence the market, although it was fairly favorable. The week-end trade and business news reported gradual improvement in industry, although indicating that retail trade had suffered from unfavorable able weather.

Announcement that the dividend declared on the *Fox Film class A stock last month would be paid in stock rather than cash was a further indication of the troubled affairs of the Fox interests, and the stock dropped a point to 19 1/8, which is 3 points above its low of December.

Auburn Auto lost 4 points. General Electric and Air Reduction 3 points. Shares losing 1 to 2 included American and Foreign Power, U. S. Steel, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Can, Johns-Manville, International Harvester, Anaconda, Western Union, Public Service of New Jersey and Frisco Railroad. Among the few stocks to move higher were Macy, up 2 1/4, and Coty, up 1 point.

West Penn Power Promotes Officers

Announcement is made by H. L. Mitchell, president of West Penn Power Company, of the promotion to vice presidents of A. N. Cartwright and P. H. Powers.

Mr. Cartwright, formerly general superintendent of operations in the power division, will be operating vice president in charge of all engineering and construction connected with generation, transmission and distribution. Mr. Powers, formerly commercial manager, will be commercial vice president in charge of all commercial functions, including the operation of the company's various division and district offices.

Group Plans Move Against Doherty Co.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Philip Adler and Daniel W. Blumenthal have been designated as counsel by the stockholders protective committee representing purchasers of Cities Service and Arkansas Natural Gas stock under the partial payment plan to proceed at once either by litigation or otherwise for the purpose of recovering sums of money alleged now to be withheld from them by Henry L. Doherty Company.

Proposed Iron Rate Cuts Are Rejected

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has rejected the proposal of the Mallory Steamship Company, the Southern Steamship Company, the Southern Pacific Railroad and other southwestern carriers to reduce rates on iron and steel articles from points in Atlantic seaboard territory to interior Texas destinations moving under rail-ocean-rail rates. The reductions proposed amounted to about 7 1/2 cents per 100 pounds in most cases.

British Foreign Trade Falls Off

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The British Board of Trade reports December imports into the United Kingdom totaled 106,574,000 pounds against 108,217,000 pounds in November, and exports of 58,429,000 pounds against 63,125,000 pounds. Re-exports were 7,937,000 pounds against 8,237,000.

Fox Film Will Pay Dividend in Scrip

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Directors of the Fox Film Corporation have decided to pay the dividend of $1 on the class A stock in scrip instead of cash. This dividend was declared on December 5 and is payable January 15 to record of December 31.

P. R. R. EXPENSE RATIO AGAIN REDUCED

Decline Last Year Was Ninth Consecutive Time Percentage Has Been Cut

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—For the ninth consecutive year, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company succeeded in reducing its operating ratio in 1929, and the management and employes have set out in 1930 at least to equal the 1929 ratio.

While December figures are incomplete, it is probable the Pennsylvania's operating ratio in 1929 will be around 72 per cent, which will compare with 73.85 per cent in 1928, a decrease of 1.85 per cent. This is the lowest operating ratio shown since 1916, and the management had hopes of at least equaling the 1916 figure, but the sudden slump in traffic in the last two months of the year slightly added to the year's average.

RECORD IN 1916

Best ratio in modern times was the 70.9 per cent shown in 1916, the lowest mark since 1910, which is as far as the records have been worked back on a comparable basis. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company today is a much larger operating organization than it was in 1910, due to compacting the systen through leases, mergers and acquisitions, but for comparative purposes the consolidated figures have been worked back to include the results of 1910

The year 1920 marked the return of the roads to corporate control. In the early months of that year the roads were still under federal control, then followed the federal guaranty period and the closing months saw the roads again under the management of the corporation officers. In that year the operating ratio of the Pensylvania was over 100 per cent. Since then the operating ratio has been consistently reduced as follows. 1921, 86.12 per cent; 1922, 82.64 per cent; 1923, 81.86 per cent; 1924, 80.19 per cent; 1925, 78.43 per cent; 1926, 77.54 per cent; 1927, 76.81 per cent; 1928, 73.85 per cent, and 1929, around 72 per cent.

PLANT RE-BUILT

Reduction in operating ratio has been effected through greater efficiency, economies of various kinds, consolidation of departments with economy in work as well as improved operating methods. The hundreds of millions of dollars which the Pennsylvania has put into the system since the war in road-bed, structures, equipment and other improvements have played a large part in the result attained, facilitating a more expeditious and economical handling of trains. The close of 1929 found the company's property in splendid condition, ready to enter the winter.

HOLIDAY TRADE NEAR 1928

Holiday trade over the United States as a whole, came very close to matching the volume of 1928, but actually did not do so. This can be said in the light of the definite figures given the Federal Reserve Board by the 478 largest department stores of the country covering their business for the entire month of December. The unstated total of their sales for the period was reported to the board as 1.8 per cent less than last year.

There proved to be, also, a good deal of variation in districts of the country as to holiday trade, a part of which the board's summary attributed to weather conditions. Around New York City, and on the Pacific coast, as well as in Middle Atlantic territory, there were increase in holiday buying over last year, while the greatest decline was noted in the Chicago reserve district. As the figures worked out, 113 stores reported an increased business over last year, and 365 a decreased sales volume. However, in no district did the decreases reach formidable proportions, and most observers will rate the showing as a demonstration that the stock market panic has failed to precipitate business depression.

BUILDING STEEL OUTLOOK

CLEVELAND, Jan. 11.—Building construction prospects in the structural steel market in the Chicago district do not offer much encouragement for the next few weeks, but the outlook for the year as a whole is decidedly promising, says Daily Metal Trades. Few active inquiries are pending, but most indications are more favorable than at this time last year.

Steel wire products demand is only moderately active with new buying continuing light. Small plate tonnages are being placed at Cleveland, and specifications on first quarter contracts are picking up at a good rate. Bar iron orders are fairly steady in the Chicago district, and the outlook is more encouraging than for some time. Consumption by freight car builders is beginning to pick up. Chain makers report fair business, but implement requirements of bar iron are relatively small.

Rail steel bar mills operation continue on full turn although backlogs are small. A fair volume of farm implement orders is reported. Pig iron demand is reported more active in the East although tonnages being placed are confined to small lots.

LOSS SEEN IN BUILDING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Construction activity in 1929 showed a slight decline from that of 1928 according to a statistical study just completed by the Associated General Contractors of America. The total volume of construction performed during the year as indicated by shipments of basic construction material was one per cent less than the total volume on record for 1928. This decline, though slight, marks the first year since the war that construction activity did not show a progressive increase.

The volume of construction performed during December, as determined through the study by the contractor's association, declined 56 points to index number 169. This was 12 points lower than the index figure for the same month last year, and indicates that job activities are feeling the effects of the decline in contract awards which set in early in 1929.

Long term state and municipal bond issues which were marketed in increasing volume during October declined in volume in November to $63,000,000, the lowest amount issued in any month since 1923. The average monthly figures for the first eleven months of 1929 was $106,000,000 as compared with $118,000,000 per month in the same period in 1928 and $123,000,000 during the corresponding period in 1927.

Contract awards have likewise shown no statistical evidence of recovery to normal volume although it is reported that plans in progress, which should eventuate in future contracts, are above normal, especially in the public works construction field. The total volume of contracts awarded in the 37 eastern states reported on by the F. W. Dodge Corporation amounted to $5,613,606,600 during the first 50 weeks of 1929. During the same period in 1928 the awards were $6,395,524,900.

The decline in contract awards was largely in residential type construction during 1929. The outlook for 1930 is thought to be improved as regards this class of building. Evidence of this is indicated in the analysis of recent contract awards which show an increase in number by 1,731 compared with the previous week. The total floor space and valuation awarded was less, however, indicating that smaller projects are being let in greater volume

Valley Tin Plate Prices Are Cut

New business and production schedules in the Mahoning Valley have improved recently. The trade is hoping for further improvement, and automobile manufacturers are expected to follow the lead of Ford and Chevrolet in increasing specifications.

A district producer of full-finished automobile sheets plans to operate on a 75 per cent basis shortly.

Independent producers of tin plate in the Valley district have marked down first-quarter prices to $5.25 a box, in line with similar action taken by the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company.

Bankers Work Themselves To Death; Facts.

—By B. C. FORBES—

Of the 33 presidents of New York banks, members of the Clearing House, when Percy H. Johnston came from Louisville to the Chemical Bank of New York on October 1, 1917, only one remains in the presidential office—Louis G. Kaufman, of the Chatham Phenix.

A few of the others have been made chairmen or have retired, but the great majority found the pace killing, and have died.

Consider, too, the mortality among the J. P. Morgan & Company partners. Only 10 years ago when George Whitney joined the firm he was fifteenth on the list. Today he is sixth. Here, again, death has taken a heavy toll.

"If any senior executive of a great bank or other financial institution had a groom who treated his horses as inconsiderately as the average bank head treats himself, he would fire the groom at the end of the first week," remarked Mr. Johnston. "What banker owning horses would tolerate keeping them rushing hither and thither late into the night, overfeeding them, giving them no exercise, abusing them in every way? Yet, many bankers treat themselves that way. No wonder so many of them—like Chellis Austin—die before their time."

Then Mr. Johnston mentioned several big bankers who are at this moment working themselves to death.

COL. SAM COLT was very proud of the fact that his U. S. Rubber Company had 52 plants. F. B. Davis, Jr., the Du Pont-trained executive wizard who recently took hold, figures that that is about 40 plants too many. Certainly, the half-hundred scattered factories didn't prove profitable—the company had to stop even its preferred dividend.

Already U. S. Rubber's Hartford plant as well as several others have been closed and the operators transferred to Detroit. There Mr. Davis is concentrating the tire-making division of the business, as he regards that city as the natural center for producing tires. By and by operations in certain other parts of the country will be switched to Detroit, where the company has a magnificent, mammoth plant, capable of doing a tremendous amount of business. Not long since the Detroit Board of Commerce tendered a dinner of welcome to the U. S. Rubber directors. Fulfillment of Mr. Davis' plans will add enormously to Detroit's payroll. U. S. Rubber means to become in the future a much more important factor in the tire industry.

This will interest executives: Whereas U. S. Rubber was run on the principle of concentrated, centralized authority, the first thing President Davis did was to decentralize authority. Davis believes in picking the right men as department heads and then telling them to go ahead and do the job. He invests them with authority commensurate with their responsibilities. He doesn't believe in tying their hands, in having them come to him with every little problem, and he wants this same spirit of individual responsibility carried down through the ranks.

I am told by a member of the organization that already the whole atmosphere has changed and that the company's prospects have improved extraordinarily. Its rubber plantations will mean much to stockholders in coming years.

WINSTON-SALEM is one of the growing number of cities that annually honors the citizen who performs the most worthy service for the community. It has been interesting to observe how often such awards go to busy business men. The Winston-Salem 1929 loving cup is to be presented to Roy C. Haberkern (a native Virginian), purchasing agent and a director of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, who for years has been the leading spirit in developing a wonderful industrial school for Negro orphans.

The practice of encouraging disinterested public service should spread all over the land. Worthy work deserves worthy recognition. Gratitude is not an overdone virtue.

THE Matson Navigation Company reports record-breaking tourist travel to Honolulu. "Boat trains" are now run direct from New York and Chicago to San Francisco, cutting the trip to eight and to seven days. Passenger service to Australia has also multiplied so greatly that two new liners, costing $8,000,000 each, are now being built. J. E. Ryan, Matson's general passenger agent, referring to this phenomenal growth in business, states, "We feel it is due largely to our consistent advertising. We are doing more of it this year than ever before. The trend today is towards the Pacific in many places in preference to Europe." Matson has never lost one passenger's life.

THE stock market has been taking a breathing spell—preparatory to a vigorous forward march?

HORNE CHOSEN BANK DIRECTOR

Joseph Horne has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Union National Bank of Pittsburgh. He is the third member of the Horne family to serve in this capacity, having been preceded by his father, Durbin Horne, and his grandfather, Joseph Horne. The latter was an original director and assisted in the incorporation of the bank.

Joseph Horne is a vice president and director of the Joseph Horne Company, secretary and director of the Pittsburgh Parking Garages, Inc., a member of the University Club, Allegheny Country Club, Pittsburgh, Club, Pittsburgh Golf Club, Fox Chapel Country Club and the Keystone Athletic Club.

He graduated from Yale in 1911. He entered the Joseph Horne Company and has been engaged in that business since, except the time he served in the World War. He attended Plattsburg Training Camp in 1916, was commissioned at Fort Niagara in 1917 and served at Camp Meade before crossing to the battlefields. He fought with the Three Hundred and Sixteenth Infantry of the Seventy-ninth Division in the Meuse Argonne offensive and after the war returned to Pittsburgh to resume his business activities.

BUSINESS GAINS IN WEEKS

Commercial transactions during the week ending January 4, as measured by the volume of checks presented to the banks for payment, were substantially larger than during the previous week, although less than a year ago, according to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce. Steel plants were operating at a lower level than in the corresponding period of last year. Receipts of wheat, cotton and hogs at the principal markets were smaller than for the corresponding week of 1928, while receipts of cattle exceeded those of a year ago. The distribution of goods, as indicated by the volume of freight-car loadings for the latest reported week, was lower than in the same period of a year ago.

The general index of wholesale prices was fractionally lower than a year ago. Cotton prices also declined from the previous week, while the price of wheat increased and was also considerably above last year's level.

Interest rates on time money remained at the same level as during recent weeks but rates on call money were considerably above recent levels. Bond prices increased fractionally but were substantially lower than a year ago. Business failures were somewhat more numerous than during either the previous week or the corresponding week of last year.

Builders to Change Credit Practices

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11. — Progress toward the stabilization of credit practices in the construction industry has been the outstanding development of 1929 according to George B. Walbridge, general manager of the Associated General Contractors of America. To finally eliminate loose credit procedure will be one of the major objectives of the contractors' organization in 1930 it is claimed. The progress made during the past year will be reviewed at the annual convention of the association which opens in New Orleans, January 20. Plans for the establishment of additional credit bureaus will be laid at that time.

Insull Exchange Rights Adjusted

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—Directors of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., voted to extend more liberal exchange rights during the year 1931 to holders of the company's preferred stock, second series. The stock now carries warrants allowing exchange of that series for common stock at the ratio of four shares of common for five of preferred. During 1931, the ratio will be three shares of common exchangeable for two shares of preferred.

Montgomery Ward Holds to Program

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—An official of Montgomery Ward & Company states that the company plans to continue its retail expansion program, but that management is unwilling to make public, at this time, how many new store openings are scheduled for 1930. He added that the ultimate goal of chain store program is still 1,500 stores, but the length of time required to reach that goal will depend largely on how long it will take to get suitable locations. He pointed out that in a good many cases chains have to wait several years to get the desired locations.

Record Structural Steel Order Placed

NEW YORK, Jan. 11. — The largest structural steel contract ever awarded was given yesterday to Post & McCord by Starret Brothers, Inc., builders of the 85-story Empire State Building to be erected on the old Waldorf Astoria site at Thirty-fourth street and Fifth avenue. The contract calls for 53,000 tons of fabricated steel costing $4,250,000. Delivery will start in April and will be completed in five months.

DULLNESS IN FLAT GLASS PERSISTS

Effect of New Type of Laminated Sheet Viewed By Trade With Interest

Little activity other than adjusting stocks was expected in any branch of the flat glass industry during this month, and business is running true to expectations, according to the National Glass Budget.

The time has not yet arrived when the plate glass industry can get a definite trend on the production of automobiles this year.

It will be of more than passing interest this year to witness the progress made by using two sheets of flat drawn glass for laminating purposes in competition with thin ground and polished plate glass. At this writing it looks plausible that the plate glass will be used in the better class of automobiles and drawn glass in the lower priced cars.

As the year began production was quite a bit under what it was during a greater part of the year just ended. The market is reported as being firm.

WIRED GLASS

The most encouraging feature relating to the rough and wired branches is that the market is showing signs of stability. Production is said to be at a moderate rate with stocks in producers' warehouses equal to any demand that may develop. There are good grounds for excepting an increase in the amount of building this year, particularly the class in which large quantities of glass of these kinds are used extensively.

Until after inventories are completed but little improvement in the ordering of window glass is anticipated. Even then it is thought that glass will be purchased from the manufacturers only as needed by the distributors. During the first quarter of the year caution is certain to be exercised. With production very low and small stocks generally, the trend should be towards improved conditions in the industry.

BOTTLES ACTIVE

The second week in 1930 shows a rather encouraging trend in the glass bottle industry. The first week made up a part of the customary holiday dull season. Had the dull period lasted longer it would not have been surprising. But the present week's mail received by distributors is made up to such a large extent of inquiries that a rather early buying movement is expected.

With such hopeful signs introducing the year's business, it will be most unfortunate if those engaged in

PIRATES MEET AMERICANS IN GRUDGE GAME

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Buc Hurlers Out Early. Swetonic Joins List. Two Robins on Block. | Miami Success Doubted. Baker-Trippe Repeater. Layton Retains Title.

PIRATES HELPED TOWARD GOOD START

THE pennant chances of any major league baseball club depend largely upon its getting off on the right foot in April and making a successful start. There have been exceptions, of course, notably the late drive of the Boston Nationals in 1914, when the Braves fought their way to the championship peak after being in last place on July 19. But as a general rule, a good beginning is essential to flag success. At least it makes the road easier and saves a team from a lot of uphill fighting later in the race.

Steve Swetonic.

In this connection, the 1930 outlook for the Pittsburgh club is brightened not a little by the prospect that the Pirates are going to be in better shape for the early games than has been the case in the past. This because there is a promise of improved pitching, due to the fact that some of the hurlers upon whom much depends have voluntarily mapped out a course of preparation that can hardly fail to make their physical condition in mid-April the best they have known at starting time in several years.

FIRST, Remy Kremer decided to spend a full month roughing it in the mountains before reporting for the opening practice sessions at Paso Robles on February 23. Next Jess Petty arranged to take the baths and work out at Hot Springs, Ark., for three weeks prior to departing for the training camp, and now Steve Swetonic, showing a gain of 11 pounds, announces that he will leave one week from tomorrow for Los Angeles to get the benefit of the climate there for more than four weeks pending the arrival of the Buccaneer advance guard.

These are likely to prove very helpful little items contributing to the general good of the Picaroons. The club whose pitchers are in tip-top shape has a big bulge on its rivals in the first stages of the pennant competition, and there is no doubt that the early preparations of the three flingers named will give them an advance toward working fitness with which they have not been favored in the past. It means an earlier arrival at pitching form, better practice for the batters in the training games, and greater defensive strength when the real fighting begins.

WHILE the Brooklyn baseball club has decided to retain Pitcher Dazzy Vance, mainly because it cannot find any one willing to shoulder the financial burden of the fat salary that the veteran star will demand, there are at least two other players on the Robin roster who will be put on the block before spring.

One is Rube Bressler, 35-year-old outfielder. Rube, who gave up pitching many seasons back because his batting ability made him more valuable as a regular, still swings no mean stick, hitting .318 in 136 games last year, but Harvey Hendrick, with a mark of .354 has crowded him out of Brooklyn's left garden.

Rube Bressler.

THE other Dodger on the sliding board is Pitcher Douglas McWeeny. After holding out last spring until the Robin bosses gave him a $12,000 contract, McWeeny pitched only four complete games during the entire season and turned in only the same number of victories. Paying the right-hander $3,000 per game doesn't appeal to the Brooklyn owners, so Buzz is to be passed along to any club that can be induced to give anything for him. The Brooklyn directors, who are to get together at a meeting within a week, with a prospect that their long civil war will be satisfactorily compromised, are planning some monetary as well as player cuts. It is reported that Vance's salary will be sliced from $25,000 to $18,000, and that Glenn Wright also will be given a big reduction until he proves that he will be able to play regularly.

IT WAS inevitable that Babe Ruth's demand for an annual salary of $85,000 for knocking home runs for the New York Yankees would bring out a flock of comparisons. One New York figure fiend finds that Babe doesn't want more than the income of a really good bootlegger, but does ask for more than the President of the United States receives, and more than twice what Mayor Jimmy Walker, of New York, will get under the Gotham pay-increase scale.

Here's the lineup submitted: Ruth, $85,000 (if he gets it); President Hoover, ,$75,000; Mayor Walker, $40,000; Chief Justice Taft, $20,500; college professor, $8,000; college football coach, $5,000 to $18,000; business executive, as high as $200,000; department store buyer, $7,500 to $10,000. And finally, it is figured that the boys who pay to see Ruth in action receive from $30 to $100 a week, with the average nearer $30 than the higher mark.

PROMOTERS of the proposed Miami bout between Jack Sharkey and Folding Phil Scott, the game's leading foulee, are going to be disappointed in the expectation that the show will draw as large a gate as the Sharkey-Stribling affair there last winter, according to Lou Fink, once trainer of Gene Tunney.

"Two or three interesting factors were present last time that will be missing on this occasion," Fink told Ed Hughes. "In the first place Tex Rickard's death attracted a lot of attention to the Sharkey-Stribling bout. Many persons attended from purely sentimental motives, because they wanted to make it a success to sort of honor the memory of Tex.

Young Stribling.

"BESIDES, Jack Dempsey was down there to boost the thing along. You know how many that fellow can attract purely on his personality. Dempsey helped a lot, and he won't be there this year. And say what you will about him, Young Stribling had an immense following down there and was a great drawing card through the South. If you know your Miami you know that Stribling, not Sharkey, had the greater drawing power at the gate. Well, Stribling won't be one of the performers this time. That will leave Sharkey to do his own drawing. My guess is that he will miss Dempsey and Stribling. I can't see the match as a card at all. The promoters may come out all right, but I doubt it."

THE following letter was received from H. W. Miller: "I saw the Joe Trippe-Sammy Baker boxing match at Motor Square Garden last Monday night, and, like all the other fans present, thought it the greatest fight I had ever witnessed. Why not another match between these two? I am an ex-service man, but thought a draw the best Sergt. Baker should have been given. However, I was not one of the fans who booed the decision.

"Can't you use your influence with John Hernon, the Garden promoter, and have him bring Trippe and Baker together here again? He's a former newspaperman and would do it for you fellows. Why let some other city take the match? Pittsburgh fans paid first to see it and are entitled to get it back again before New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, or any of the other cities.

"IF THE show had been one of those out-of-town fights that sport writers talk about, we Pittsburghers would have paid to see it just the same, so please do what you can to get it for us again real soon. Thanks for your trouble."

The correspondent may rest assured of getting what he wants. For it develops that no prompting was necessary to make Manager Hernon see the advisability of putting Trippe and Baker on again. Realizing that the great fight put up by them made a return bout a

DRURY RETURNS TO BUC LINEUP TONIGHT

By CARL W. SHATTO.

They New York Americans will be after vindication and the Pirates will seek a liberal portion of the same stuff when these National Hockey League rivals renew their fued at Duquesne Garden at 8:30 tonight.

Herb Drury

On the occasion of the American's last appearance here Lionel Conacher and his skaters were handed an 8-1 kayo wallop by a badly crippled Bucco squad. The startling aftermath of this fight was an announcement made by the Americans, upon their return to New York, that they had been doublecrossed, and that they could have trounced the local puckman had they not been made the victim of a "scurvy trick."

The Americans charged that the Pirates asked for mercy because of their crippled condition, and then forgot they were crippled and failed to show the healthy New Yorkers any mercy.

Frederickson labeled the American's charge a "pipe dream," and sent his Pirates to New York to give Conacher's club an opportunity to collect its threatened revenge.

YANK GET REVENGE

The Americans got a "break" when Hib Milks, who led the Bucs to their 8-1 triumph here, was added to the big hospital squad just before the New York invasion. The Conacher clan got its revenge by a 3-2 score, but—the Pirates charge that the third and final period was a "sudden death" stanza in that the gong was sounded as soon as the Americans caged the goal that gave them the lead. The Bucs further contend that they could have gained a tie or a victory had the period been of the customary 20 minutes' duration.

Tonight the verbal battling with hot air will be shelved for physical battling with hockey sticks, and it promises to be a real battle, for each club is eager to prove its contention that it can down the other when everything is on the up and up.

PIRATES FAVORITES.

The Bucs are favored to win this vindication joust, for the tide of fortune has turned and the breaks now are with them. Not only is Milks back in harness, but Herb Drury, out for almost two months with a broken hand, is ready to return to the lineup. The idol of local hockeydom, who captured and long has held the fancy of local fans with his flashy center-ice play, has tested the strength of his hand in workouts each day this week, and he is confident that he again is fit to mingle with National League company.

Drury will replace Ren Manners at center on the spare front line.

The Pirates may find the Americans a fairly tough nut to crack, for Conacher's men have flashed their best form of the season in garnering three wins and a tie in their last six starts. The locals have turned in three victories and a tie in their last four starts at home, and they do not propose to have this string of home successes snapped.

LOWREY AT CENTER

Frederickson shifted Milks from center to wing and Lowrey from wing to center, in the game in Boston Thursday night. The Bucs flashed fine form in holding the Bruins to a 4-3 score, and it is probable that Lowrey will remain at center on the starting front line.

Roy Worters, former Pittsburgh goalie, is expected to return to the Americans' lineup tonight after being out for about two weeks with a severe injury. The probable lineup:

Miller	G	Worters
Smith	D	Conacher
Fraser	D	Brydge

Darragh	W	McVeigh

YESTERDAY'S EXPLANATIONS—THE WHOLE EARTH WEIGHS NOTHING—Weight is the pull the earth exerts upon objects within its immediate gravitational influence. While every object suspended on earth is pulled toward the center of our globe with the same force as if the whole mass of the earth were concentrated in its center, it is obvious that in the absence of the above prerequisites our earth, strictly speaking, weighs nothing. Weight is a condition foreign to the earth itself in a passive sense. NO CHILDREN BORN IN JANUARY AND FEBRUARY FOR 2,000 YEARS—The original Roman year consisted of only 10 months, March to December. The first calendar reform was in 700 B. C., when King Numa Pompilous created two new months, January and February. (Reference: Werdenburg in his new book "The Calendar," Page 12.) TECH, DUKES IN BATTLES ABROAD

By JESS CARVER

Dr. Clifford Carlson, the well-known red-head of the University of Pittsburgh, arch foe of gloom and depression and family well known as a basketball coach will send his Pitt Panthers into their tenth engagement of the season tonight, with Georgetown University's ambitious court squad furnishing the opposition.

Dr. Carlson

If the noted Doctor and his equally noted athletes, are able to salt this one away tonight, it will be 10 in a row for 'em this season and sufficient excuse for the University to declare a dividend of some sort. Pitt is not in the habit of doing anything as foolish as giving anything away, but regardless of that the excuse will be there.

So far, the Panthers have come through victorious against teams of the caliber of Ohio State, Montana, Grove City, Nebraska, Iowa, Northwestern, Muskingum, Carnegie Tech and other teams of that class. Georgetown will be the first eastern five to feel the claws of the Panthers. Last night, the Hilltoppers took on West Virginia, coached by the gentlemanly Francis Stadsvold.

Georgetown's record to date is impressive enough, including wins over New York University and Wake Forest and a defeat, by a three-point margin, at the hands of Yale. The probable lineup:

PITT.		GEORGETOWN.
Hyatt	F	Shea
Zehfuss	F	Desmond
L. Cohen	C	Dutton
Arture	G	McCarthy
W. Kowalffs	G	Mesmer

Referee—Kummer. Umpire—Waite.

TECH, DUKES AWAY

Carnegie Tech and Duquesne both sent their teams out of town for contests this evening. The Tartans are hooking up with Deutchland Uber Alles Herman's Penn State club at State College, and the Dukes are in Cleveland to take a swing at John Carroll. Tech is up against the tougher assignment of the two.

Coach Hogan has worked wonders with the Skibo basketeers so far and if Tech grabs off this ball game tonight, you will have to doff your chapeau to the men of Carnegie. The Tech and State freshmen fives will meet in a preliminary tussle.

PANKA BEATS WILLIAMS GETS DRAW

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

There is a law of averages, after all. Several weeks ago, in the Moose Temple, Harry Williams, Negro heavyweight, of Rankin, shaded George Panka, of Homestead, in the 10-round main bout in the Moose Temple, but had to be satisfied with a draw. Last night, in the last show to be held by Promoter Francis Flynn in the same arena, Panka staged a wild rally to come from behind and have Williams out on his feet throughout the last two minutes of the final round and go into the lead, only to have the officials rule their debate a draw again.

Going into the last round, it was Williams' fight. He had knocked down Panka for a count of nine in the eighth round and outscored him in the third, fifth, sixth and seventh, with the fourth even, but wilted in the face of a determined finish by Panka in the ninth and tenth, and was a woebegone gladiator when the final bell clanged. It was only by using the ring liberally and reeling and falling away before Panka's pounding gloves that he was able to stick it out to the final bell, and if he had gone down in his weakened condition it is doubtful if he would have been able to summon sufficient strength to arise.

JUDGES DISAGREE

However, Panka's game rally, after being in distress himself two rounds before, went for naught. Judge Frank Brown voted for Williams, Judge Jim McLaughlin for Panka, and Referee Red Robinson for a draw, and a draw it was.

HOLLOCHER IS NEXT TO WAGNER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

National League patrons would welcome the return to the game of Charley (Chuck) Hollocher, former Cub shortfielder who left the sport on account of sickness some five years ago. The veteran enjoying better health wants to don the uniform again.

It might not be an exaggeration to state that Hollocher was the best in the sport at his position since Honus Wagner left the field, although the statement might require some qualification.

A mention of Hollocher on a comparative basis with the one and only Flying Dutchman is suggested when one considers all-around ability.

The retired Bruin ball hawk seems to have been close to Wagner in the point of speed; he was a dangerous hitter and a big star defensively.

It might be a slight to Rabbit Maranville, Dave Bancroft, Travis Jackson, Glenn Wright and a few others to put Hollocher up so close to Honus, yet Chuck probably could do more things like Honus than any of the others. Walter Maranville is close to him as a baserunner and the Rabbit is one of the smartest infielders that ever walked the field, but he

Mandell, Quintero Fight Postponed

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 11.—(AP.)—The fight between Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, and Manuel Quintero, Cuban cavalier, was called off before the first preliminary bout last night on account of inclement weather.

The fight will be held in the outdoor arena of the Miami Kennel Club, next Wednesday, according to announcement from the office of G. P. K. Carter, promoter of the bout.

BOSTON, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Jimmy Maloney, Boston heavyweight, and Armand Emanuel, San Francisco's battling attorney, have been matched for a 10-round clash in the Boston Garden on January 24. They agreed to meet in a New York bout several months ago, but Emanuel withdrew after claiming he had injured himself while training.

PAULINO COMES BACK TO BEAT VON PORAT

BURNS DEFEATS SPENCE IN ERIE GO

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Fighting back fiercely from the valley of the deep fog, the ancient woodchopper from Spain, grim Paulino Uzcudun, carved a few chunks from the middle of lanky Otto Von Porat last night and won a fight after 16,000 of the faithful were ready to start singing the Old Bezark's swan song.

For three rounds, the tall, lantern-jawed schoolmaster from Norway poured right-hand volleys into the Spaniard's head until the glaring lights above must have been swimming in a sea of fireworks. Volley after volley crashed into the rock-ribbed chin of the Spaniard. One long right hand after another sank deep in his body. His nose poured crimson, his left eye turned red and lumps stood out all over his weather-beaten countenance.

Then, with his countrymen at the ringside shouting feeble viva's and a dozen bells clanging in his ears, this game old rock of the Pyreenes started to fight. He walked straight into Von Porat's cool, raking drives, shook his head and slashed at Otto's body, until the big Norwegian faltered and the tide turned.

From the end of the third round on, when the boys in the derbies were wagering he would not go another round, Paulino won all there was to the fight with the exception of the fourth session. That was even and, though the Spaniard's margin in several other rounds was only little, still he never did quit showing that Von Porat is one man he can whip.

It was hardly an exciting battle from the fourth round on and the chief interest of the customers was in Uzcudun's unsurpassed gameness. After the battle, Von Porat said he quit punching from the fourth round on because of injuries of his hands. He had no excuses to offer, however. Paulino said the Norwegian was the best man he has ever encountered. Von Porat had a slight pull in the weights. He weighed 203½ pounds to 196½ for Paulino.

BURNS BEATS SPENCE

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 11.—After nine rounds of slow milling, with only a few fast flurries, Chuck Burns, Akron light-heavyweight, opened up with a two-fisted attack in the tenth and final chapter to register a victory over Arvin Spence, Cleveland Negro, in the main bout here last night.

Tony Tozzo, Buffalo, administered a boxing lesson to Benny Burns, Akron, in the six-round semi-final, taking practically every round. Hymie Rudin, Ashtabula Jewish lad, and Jimmy Dean, Erie Negro, fought a six-round draw and Carl Scalise, of Erie, beat Joe Boler, of Erie, in a corking four-rounder.

FLOWERS, TUT DRAW

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Bruce Flowers, sharpshooting Negro lightweight from New Rochelle, N. Y., fought the rough King Tut, Minneapolis challenger for the lightweight title, to a draw in their 10-round battle in the Chicago Stadium last night.

Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, defeated Jimmy Owens, of Oklahoma City, by a technical knockout in the second round of their scheduled 10-rounder. Owens was punched silly in the first round. He was no match for the titleholder. He bled profusely from a gash in the mouth and was on the verge of going to the floor from punishment in the second when Referee Dave Barry intervened. Owens weighed 148 and Fields 146¾.

Billy Wallace, Cleveland lightweight, scored a technical knockout over Danny Delmont, a mauling Chicago youngster, in the ninth round of their scheduled 10-round match. Wallace punished his foe in the last two sessions and himself was in no danger except perhaps in the third round when Delmont cut loose with a wild right that clipped him on the chin.

CHICAGO LOYOLA WINS

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Loyola's high-powered basketball team swept aside South Dakota State, 1929 North Central Conference champions, by a 37-to-11 score last night, to account for its twenty-ninth consecutive triumph.

TRINITY ROYALS WIN

The Trinity Cathedral Royals won another game last night, defeating the Overbrook Juniors, 38 to 28, in a fast tilt on the Cathedral court. Reidenbach was the individual scoring star.

Panka, slow and fat at 199½ pounds, had a weight edge of 23½ pounds over the 176-pound Williams, and, until he appeared hopelessly beaten, he made the same mistake of trying to box at long range that he did in the first battle. During this period, he missed oftener than he landed, and the shiftier and cleaner hitting Williams was pacing his way handily to victory until he faded before the closing rush of the heavier man. Williams frequently hurt Panka with uppercuts and swings to the body and it was not until Panka quit swinging from the outfield and crowded Williams and punched short with his body behind the blows, as when he was just starting out and scoring knockouts, that he hurt Harry.

The first two rounds belonged to Panka on his forcing. He landed often with long rights until Williams began to slow down his attack by punching to the body late in the second round. The next two rounds were slow, with Panka plodding in and missing often and Williams countering cleanly. The third went to Williams, the fourth was even and the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth rounds belonged to Williams.

EIGHTH ROUNDER THRILLER

Panka started fast in the eighth round and nailed Williams against the ropes and punched himself out trying for a knockout. Harry survived the glove flurry and finally began to fight back and dropped the spent Panka with right and left to the jaw for a count of nine in midring, the only time Panka has taken a count in his bouts here. However, it was apparent that Panka was more tired than hurt, for he got up refreshed and traded swings with Williams, winding up by dazing him with a right to the jaw against the ropes. In the excitement, Williams thought the bell had rung and started for his corner and Panka followed suit, but the referee ordered them to continue fighting and the gong followed soon afterward.

The tide turned definitely in Panka's favor in the ninth round. He forced the going all of the way and had Williams hanging on late in the session. The tenth round was a repetition, only more so. Panka remained on top of his opponent from bell to bell, driving him about the ring under a shower of punches from both fists. Williams really was out on his feet and he was drooling blood thickly from his cut lips and was a gory sight. He gamely staggered through to the finish as much on instinct as anything else, and was clearly a beaten man when the final gong clanged.

A small crowd turned out for the farewell show, which was surprising in view of the sentimental side in connection with the passing of the popular downtown arena, but those who were there saw three good preliminaries in addition to the hot finish in the windup.

DURIS BEATS SMACKEY

In the six-round semi-final, Mickey Duris, of Johnstown, making his local debut, won handily after the opening round over Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg. Duris was too fast with his hands and feet for Smackey, who, however, fought a good battle. Both scaled 137 pounds. The Johnstowner went over big with the fans and will be welcomed back.

Capo Coluba, Cuban Negro, scaling 163½ pounds, was too good a boxer for Frank Monroe, Fair Haven veteran, 165½, and won hands down until he got into trouble by stopping a few of the desperate Monroe's sweeping swings in the last round. Monroe just missed a knockout in this round, Coluba hanging on to last out the session, but Frank had lost the first five rounds by miles and the rally came too late. At that, Referee Red Robinson called the bout a draw, the judges agreeing on Coluba.

Frankie Portland, of the North Side, proved a corking puncher and finished Bob Collura, of Beechview, by the technical knockout route in the second round of the opening bout. He floored Bob with right-handers for a count of eight and another of four, the bell coming to Collura's rescue in the first round, and dropped him for two, eight, no count and then floored him again before the referee intervened in the second frame. Portland weighed 137½ pounds and Collura 139.

SCHWARTZ INTRODUCED

HOLLOCHER GREAT PLAYER

Hollocher was a better baserunner than any others mentioned; he seems to have been just about as good a fielder as any of them and his hitting was almost as effective as any aside from Spread-Eagle Wright, who was a bearcat at the plate, especially in a "pinch."

Hollocher has been out of the game so long that he may find it hard to get back into a satisfactory stride. It was a pity he left the sport so young.

CLARION YOUTHS STAR, EACH MINUS HAND

Two Clarion (Pa.) Teachers College students, each with only one hand, have declined to allow the handicap to keep them from starring in athletics. They are John Kaizer and Wilbur J. DuMar.

ALL-ROUND ATHLETE

A hasty survey of what Kaiser has done shows that he has participated in football, basketball, baseball and track in high school; pitched for the varsity at Indiana State Normal and played on the second teams in football and basketball, as well as showing up brilliantly in the javelin throw and shotput; played right halfback for two years for Clarion State Teachers College, making the first touchdown in the 1929 season against California State Teachers' College; won medals last spring in the shotput and javelin throw in the teachers college meet at Indiana, and pitched for the college varsity nine.

As for DuMar, he won three letters in each of three sports, football, basketball and track, at Cochranton High School and pitched for the high school baseball team for three years, being captain the last year; established new Crawford County high school records in the high and broad jumps and played center on the Crawford County championship basketball team of 1926.

GUARD ON FLOOR TEAM

At Clarion State Teachers College, DuMar has won two football letters, a basketball letter and a track letter and is playing guard on this year's varsity basketball five. His present home is at Meadville, Pa.

ROGERS LEADS BIG FIELD

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Crouched behind a bulwark of sodden fairways, old man Par resisted all except one attack on his stronghold yesterday in the first round of the annual 72-hole $10,000 Los Angeles open golf championship. To Johnny Rogers, of Denver, went the honors of turning in a sub-par card of 70, one under standard figures.

The former Pittsburgher's feat silenced the thunder of the other big guns of golf. His nearest rivals, Al Espinosa, of Chicago, and Charley Seaver, 18-year-old amateur, of Los Angeles, chalked up 72s.

MacDonald Smith, winner of this event for the last two years and a favorite to repeat, faltered in his putting game and took a 39-38—77. Far behind, Walter Hagen, of Detroit, soared up to an 81.

PITT MEETS GEORGETOWN

A. W. McMillian, the well known official, who pulled out the highest grade of the lot at the recent rules test given gridiron arbiters, has taken a table at the Oakland Board of Trade banquet Monday night, and will be surrounded by a select group, which will include Georgia Gray, who rides herd on Nash chuggers hereabouts and Fritz (Himself) Forescheimer and Jim Miller.

DEX SPEAKS UP

"Why," quoth Mr. Very, "couldn't those babies blow up against State some Thanksgiving? We need to beat Pitt worse than Southern Cal. did."

"Found in your rooms after departure—five pair of spats, three canes, two derbies, six shirts, five openers, two aces stuck under table with chewing gum and one sock with hole in heel. Advise method of disposal."

EDDIE BRANNON JOHNNY SMACKEY JACKIE MURRAY MIKE RAY

U. S. G. A. Reinstates Mary K. Browne

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Miss Mary K. Browne, former women's tennis champion of the United States and in 1924 runner-up in the women's golf championship, yesterday was re-installed as an amateur golfer by the executive committee of the United States Golf Association. Miss Browne, formerly of Los Angeles, but now resident at Cleveland, she became a member of C. C. Pyle's touring tennis party in 1926. Her three years of probation as an amateur golfer will expire February 12.

The executive committee also announced the reinstatement of Phil Carter, of Los Angeles, formerly of New York.

Robert T. Jones, Jr., was named captain of the Walker Cup team to play International matches in England in the spring.

Art Shires Scores Knockout Over Al Spohrer

BOSTON, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Arthur (The Great) Shires chalked up his fourth ring victory out of five starts here last night by gaining a four-round technical knockout over Bald-Headed Al Spohrer, Boston Braves' catcher. Spohrer, struck a defensive pose in the second minute of the opening round and held it to the end.

After Spohrer was dropped for nine by a right hook to the head in the second, he ceased trying and was content to remain in a neutral corner with his arms protecting his face and bald head. The relaxation lasted for more than a minute.

The capacity crowd of 18,000 jeered Shires before, during and after the performance, but he finally waved it into silence long enough to announce: "I didn't want Al Spohrer. I want Hack Wilson."

LAYTON DOWNS OTTO REISELT, KEEPS TITLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Johnny Layton, St. Louis' carpenter cue master, last night measured his angles perfectly to retain his National three-cushion billiard title, defeating Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, 50 to 32, in 43 innings of brillant championship billiards. The victory gave Layton the title for the third consecutive year.

However, it was not without a struggle that Layton won. For 28 innings the smiling little Philadelphia German matched billiard for billiard with the titian-haired champion. In the twenty-eighth inning, however, Layton hit his stride. Starting with a deadly consistency that mounted at the rate of one carom an inning, the champion slowly pulled away. He stopped momentarily in the thirty-fifth on a miscue, but was off the next inning at a faster clip than ever. With clusters of two, three, four, five and eight he quickly ran out the block. Displaying almost perfect style the six-times champion clicked off 23 billiards in the last eight innings for one of the high marks of the tournament.

Layton finished the tournament with a record of six victories and one defeat. Augie Kieckhefer handed him his only setback. The defeat dropped Reiselt back into a tie for second place with Allan Hall, of St. Louis. Each won five of their seven starts.

FESSENDON KEEPS TITLE

TWO SOCCER TILTS TODAY

TODAY'S GAMES.
WEST PENN SEMI-FINAL.
Gallatin vs. Heidelberg Eagles.
DISTRICT LEAGUE.
Crafton at Pittsburgh Celtics.

By TOM BIRKS.

Today's soccer tid-bit will be flashed at the Carnegie High School field when Gallatin, of the American League, clashes with the Heidelberg Eagles in the semi-final round of the West Penn senior cup. It is sure to be a hard fight despite the fact indications point to a Gallatin victory.

Fans will not forget the Eagles victory over the Clan Douglas Club last Saturday in the National Amateur cup, and Douglas without a doubt is the most scientific soccer aggregation in the district.

With more veterans in its lineup, Gallatain should win, but fans around the Panhandle will be pulling for Heidelberg. The weather man is forecasting a frost and that may come in time to harden the ground. If the field is anything like the New Year's Day condition, the battle should be promptly called off. The grounds should be inspected no later than 10 a. m. and if heavy, Gallatin should be notified not travel.

The other game will be played, and this will find Crafton meeting the Pittsburgh Celtics in the District League. It seems hardly fair to the cup semi-final to play this game, but the clubs are complaining over long layoffs.

ROSIES TIE FOR LEAD

CLEVELAND, Jan. 11.—The Rosenblums caused a deadlock for the lead in the first half of the American Basketball League race last night when they humbled Ft. Wayne, 27 to 19, before 5,500 enthusiastic fans in a brilliant contest featured by the fast play of the Rosies.

It was unusual to see the Rosies in their first romp of the season on the home court. They started at a fast pace and soon took a commanding lead, never being threatened. Dehnert and Lapchick each counted five points in the first half. They both added four more to their total in the second half.

Cleveland and Brooklyn, tied for the lead, meet here tomorrow night. After that both have but a single game. Chicago at Cleveland, Brooklyn at Paterson. The lineup:

Rosenblums—27.		Ft. Wayne—19.
Beckman	F	Saunders
Barry	F	Glasco
Lapchick	C	Kowalcyk
Dehnert	G	Shimek
Husta	G	Miller

Substitutions—Dickerson for Beckman, Kerr for Barry (injury), Field goals—Rosenblums, 12 out of 31; Ft. Wayne, 7 out of 42; Dickerson 1, Barry 1, Lapchick 4, Dehnert 4, Husta 1, Glasco 2, Kowalcyk 1, Shimek 2, Miller 2. Foul goals—Rosenblums, 3 out of 4; Ft. Wayne, 5 out of 8. Long's Sport Comment natural, and that no more popular card could be offered to his patrons, the wide-awake promoter had already taken the first steps toward matching the men up again. That he will succeed is a certainty, and a February date yet to be selected will witness the restaging of one of the most pleasing bouts ever seen in Pittsburgh.

Col. N. W. Russler.

A SUCCESSFUL season for community-backed baseball is promised at Cumberland this year, with Col. Nelson W. Russler back as president of Community Baseball, Inc., which operates the Cumberland Colts in the Middle-Atlantic League. Russler returns to baseball after an absence of seven years. He was president and manager of Cumberland's teams from 1911 to 1922. The Colonel also is prominent in politics in Allegany County, Md., being at present a county commissioner and chairman of the State Republican Central Committee. He succeeds Dr. Homer B. Walker, who served one year as president of the club. Before Hooker Joe Phillips, of Waynesburg, Fairmont pilot for three years, was appointed manager of Cumberland for next season an effort was made to sign Del Gainer, former major leaguer, but Gainer is to succeed Phillips as skipper at Fairmont.

IT IS to be hoped that the success of Art Shires in hanging up another rough-house technical kayo at the expense of Al Spohrer in Boston last night, when the seconds of the Braves' catcher ended the sloppy affair by jumping into the ring in the fourth round, will not cause the White Sox first-sacker to change his mind about giving up the fight game after that engagement. In having Paulino Uzcudun clamoring for recognition as a title contender again following his 10-round decision victory over Otto Von Porat in New York last night, the heavyweight fistic situation will be bad enough without the presence of any alley fighters who have only baseball reputations to recommend them as attractions on a boxing bill.

As a glove exhibition, the Boston bout was a farce, as might have been expected. You can imagine what a ring joke Spohrer must be from the fact that Shires "outclassed" him. Neither Shires nor any other ball player has any business in the fight game. They owe it to their own sport, to boxing and themselves to get out of it as quickly as possible. And if they don't get out voluntarily they ought to be put out and kept out.

JOHNNY LAYTON is one sport champion who rarely disappoints. The three-cushion billiard king was the first of all titleholders to defend his honors in the new year, and he retained his laurels by defeating Otto Reiselt, 50 to 32, in the final game of the New York championship tournament last night.

Reiselt had fought his way down to a tie with Layton at the finish, each having won five games and lost one, but the usual thing happened. They may press Layton, but when the pinch comes he shows that little bet of "extra" that spells a real champion. Layton is as clearly the master of the three-cushion field as Willie Hoppe was of the balk-line game for many years in the bygone.

Sun-Telegraph to Present Radio Poll Tomorrow

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

THE Pittsburgh Radio Poll, instituted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph last year to give listeners an opportunity to express preference in programs and stations, will be put before the radio public again tomorrow. The Poll is held twice a year. A ballot entitling every reader to a vote will appear in tomorrow's Radio Section.

One of the questions concerns the wavelength situation in Pittsburgh. Last Saturday the Sun-Telegraph invoked the aid of the Federal Radio Commission in bettering reception conditions here. Express your opinion in the Radio Poll tomorrow.

A final test of the new 1,000-watt transmitter recently put in use by WCAE is being made today in a gala 18-hour continuous program that will wind up early Sunday morning.

TRAP SUSPECTS AT STATION

They said they were Albert Drake, 19, of Washington; James Rodgers, 23, and Pete Garis, 26, both of Chicago. When searched at the station each yielded a loaded revolver, police said.

Patrolman William Kessler, who was returning to Pittsburgh from Ohio on the same train, noticed a suspicious bulge in the pocket of one of them. When the train neared Federal street station they appeared to be preparing to get off, and the patrolman made preparations to do the same. As he stepped onto the platform the men again settled down in their seats, and fearing to arouse their suspicion Kessler walked into the station. Once out of their sight he hailed a taxicab and made a hurried trip to Pennsylvania Station, arriving ahead of the train. When the men stepped off he arrested them and took them to the police station where they were booked as suspicious persons.

PARK BANDITS ROB AUTOIST

Four well-dressed bandits who last night held up Joseph C. Jackson, of 460 Seventh avenue, West Homestead, in Schenley Park and robbed him of $67 were sought by police today.

Jackson was driving his automobile when the bandits in another car, blocked his path, police said.

Thieves broke into the automobiles of H. Fleishman, of the Roosevelt Hotel, and N. M. Johnson, of 500 Cherryfield street, while the cars were parked in Penn avenue, near Seventh street, last night. From Fleishman's car a sample case containing children's sweaters valued at $200 was stolen, and an overcoat worth $30 was taken from Johnson's machine.

A roomer in the home of Mary Blake, of 5805 Broad street, was sought by police today in connection with the theft of clothing and $20 in cash from the house yesterday.

FIREMEN MEET IN BRENTWOOD

Representatives of 35 municipalities will be present at the business meeting of the Allegheny County Firemen's Association, which will be held in Brentwood tonight. The Brentwood Volunteer Fire Company will be the hosts.

The gathering will take place in the summer house of the Brentwood Municipal Park. Entertainment will be furnished by the Thomas-Williams Trio, consisting of Vero Thomas, Karl E. Williams and Helen H. Thomas.

Edward E. Eibs, president of the Brentwood Volunteer Fire Company, will be in charge of the meeting.

Arthur Reappointed Manager in Avalon

J. N. Arthur was re-elected borough manager for his third year at a meeting of Avalon council last night. Policemen renamed were Chief Louis Luckan, Traffic Officer James Parker and Night Sergt. John Morton. Arthur Hallewell was chosen day patrolman.

Negro Assembles Museum Of Interesting Rarities

By PENELOPE REDD.

This is the story of a unique collection of interesting things which has been gathered by one of Pittsburgh's Negro citizens, C. H. Wallace.

It is told that many years ago Wallace did odd jobs. If a cellar needed cleaning or an attic needed emptying and Wallace got the job, before the "junk" was disposed of it was thoroughly scanned for hidden treasure.

Among the rags and remnants and ruins of disregarded household furnishments, he found many things which appealed to his "collecting" sense as being worthy of a pace in his home, which he made into a hospice for neglected treasures.

For 25 years Wallace has been gathering the rare and the unusual.

STARTED IN BOYHOOD

No longer does he limit himself to chance discoveries of waif treasures in basement or loft. His native intuition has been developed into a definite knowledge of those things prized by collectors. He follows the collector's trail of auctions, second-hand stores and countryside gleaning.

As a boy, Wallace collected coins and stamps. Even though his collection has now been expanded to include rarities of every description, the stamp collection has been logically continued. In it there are to be found many of the "first flights" of airplane mail. One of the latest additions is the many-stamped "original covers" of the Zeppelin world flight.

TREASURES IN HOME

Mr. Wallace's modest home on Luna street houses fine blue and white china, pewter, old Venetian glass, Bohemian enameled glass and Bristol glass. He has furniture and decorative pieces in teak, mahogany, rosewood and sandalwood inlaid with marquetry and pearl, carved or lacquered.

Mr. Wallace has assembled an anthology of collections. Probably everything he possesses was at one time treasured by its original purchaser, but not more so than by its present owner. For Wallace collects few things in which he is not personally interested. With collector friends, he will exchange. But he has the true collector's sense which is for possession and not for speculative acquisition.

Once a year he takes a month on the open road seeking what he may find to increase his collections. For the eleven work-a-day months, Wallace has found a magic carpet to transport him beyond geographical limits and immediate time, in his conglomeration of historical relics, traveler's souvenirs and genuine examples of the decorative arts.

Auto Crane Saves Dobbin From Deep Well

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 11.—An automobile wreck derrick was used to rescue "Old Dobbin" when a horse belonging to Marshall Thomas at Vanderbilt, near here, fell into a well on the farm.

2 HELD IN THEFT ATTEMPT CASE

Daniel Black, 36, of 4131 Brownsville avenue, Brentwood, a garage owner, and William P. Morris, 30, of Ninth street, Elizabeth, were held for court on a charge of attempted highway robbery at a hearing before Alderman Robert C. Calhoun in McKeesport last night. Arthur Blair, 26, of Elizabeth, was discharged.

The three were arrested after an alleged attempt to hold up Adrian Frederick, 21, of 474 Belonda street, driver for Donohoe's store in McKeesport. Employes of the store preferred the charges. Black and Morris were released under $1,500 bail each.

Black admitted ownership of $50,000 in real estate in the Brentwood district in addition to his garage, it was said.

CUTTING PLANT, CLUBS RAIDED

The cutting plant, agents said, was found in a dwelling at 5509 Kamin street, where John Sibilia, 48, and Hazel Sibilia, 37, were arrested. The seizure of 110 pints of whisky, 99 bottles of gin and 12 gallons of alcohol was reported. The Sibilias were released on their own recognizance.

Several patrons in a second-floor club at 4829 Second avenue, escaped through windows while agents were chopping their way through two steel doors leading into the club, it was reported. Several bottles of gin and moonshine wer confiscated in the place, according to the raiders.

Whisky seizures were made in a club on the second floor of 2627 Carey way and at 7220 Hamilton avenue, agents asserted. Robert Roberts, 27, arrested in the Carey way club, and William F. Anthony, 21, taken in the latter place, were held in bond.

AIR-RAIL FARE AGAIN CUT

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—C. M. Keys, president of the Transcontinental Air Transport-Maddux Air Lines, has announced a drastic reduction in rates on the 48-hour service between New York and Los Angeles which the company operates in conjunction with the Pennsylvania and Santa Fe Railroads.

The new rate, Keys said, is lower than that on the extra-fare trains, with Pullman, across the country.

The new fare to Los Angeles from New York is $159.92, a reduction of $107.50 from the former rate and less than half of the tariff charged when the service was first opened last July.

The announcement said that a rate of 5 cents per mile would go into effect on January 14 between all cities at which T. A. T.-Maddux planes make regular stops on its transcontinental lines, a cut from an average mileage tariff of 12 cents.

3 HURT AS CABLE HITS GIRDER

Three men were injured when a girder on which they were being lifted to a bridge on the new Ohio River boulevard at Emsworth became charged after the boom of the lifting derrick struck an electric cable. The men were hurled 20 feet to the ground. The accident occurred late yesterday at the intersection of the boulevard and Lowries Run road, Emsworth.

The injured, all employes of the Booth and Flinn Company, are Thomas Jenkins, 25, a rigger of West Bellevue; Charles Cunningham, 40, of 102 Fisk street, Avalon, and George Hockensmith, general superintendent of the work.

BOY, 4, TAUGHT THEFT, CHARGE

Two women, one of whom was alleged to have been teaching her 4-year-old son to steal, were to be arraigned in Morals Court today, following their arrest late yesterday on a charge of shoplifting.

The women, Mrs. Sophia Mandich, 26, and Bertha Mamula, 21, both of 2705 Carey way, were arresting in a five-and-10-cent store at 1501 Carson street, when Mrs. Mandich's son was caught stealing articles from a counter, police alleged. Both women had hosiery, slippers and other articles which, police said, were stolen from other South Side stores.

The mistakes in this picture stand out quite clearly. The artist inserted 10 of them. See if you can find five of them. The sign HOT CLEVER is unusual. That is because the letters were put up wrong. Rearrange the letters in one line and they will spell the name of a make of automobile.

This picture contains 10 mistakes that were made purposely by the artist. You must find five of them and make a list. If your list contains these five mistakes it will be correct. But you must also discover the name of a make of automobile. Note the name BROOKS above the show window. By changing three letters in that name you will find the kind of cars that Mr. Brooks sells. The answer will be a plural word.

Ten mistakes intended by the artist appear in this picture. Study the drawing carefully and you can find them. Only five are necessary to make your list complete. A name of a make of automobile is in view. Look in the proper place for it and you will find the letters there in regular row. Add this name to your list of mistakes in order to have a perfect answer to the puzzle.

GERMANS FACE SHOWDOWN

THE HAGUE, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—The German delegation to the second Hague conference on application of the Young plan were called upon peremptorily this morning to furnish a precise statement of what Germany was willing to do to meet demands of the creditor nations.

Dr. Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, who was about to leave here for the meeting of the council of the League of Nations at Geneva, was called upon by Henri Cheron, French finance minister, and Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the Exchequer, to tell exactly what his delegation proposed to do.

Curtius at once abandoned his idea of going to Geneva and proposed written proposals by 1 p. m., which the creditor nation representatives intended to consider at 3 p. m. At 4 p. m. the creditor nations and German representatives will meet again for further discussion of the situation.

The creditor nations' action followed conferences last night at which anxiety was expressed at the sluggish progress of the meeting. The meeting of the "Big Six" accordingly was called for this morning and the firm stand taken there.

Questions involved in the situation which has arisen are the matter of whether military sanctions as guarantee of German payments shall persist as part of the allied reparations policy, the question of an eventful moratorium, and maturity dates for the reparations installments.

SHIP ON ROCKS BREAKING UP

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., Jan. 11.—(INS.)—A wrecking tug and a lighter today went to the scene of the stranded freighter Edward Luckenbach, which went aground off here, with officers and crew of 40 aboard.

Pounded by heavy seas, the Luckenbach, being slowly broken to pieces, was left high on the rocky reef by the incoming tide this morning. Fears were expressed that the freighter, bound from New York for Boston and Pacific Coast points with a general cargo of freight, would be a total loss.

Although breeches buoys were rigged from Block Island bluffs to the deck of the standed ship in case of emergency, none of the officers or crew of the freighter have been taken off, it was stated at the Coast Guard base here.

Large, jagged holes were ripped in the bottom of the apparently doomed craft by the huge rocks against which she was buffeted, allowing the sea to enter her holds almost unchecked.

MORE SNOW DUE IN MID-WEST

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Temperatures rose over most of the southwest and Rocky Mountain region today, after a six-day blizzard and cold wave, but clouded skies and ominous reports from government weather bureaus warned against optimism.

Only along the Gulf Coast of Texas and the Rio Grande valley did the storm bring more severe conditions. Temperatures dropped there during the night and loss of fruit was feared. Livestock already has suffered extensively.

Additional snow was expected today in Colorado, and over almost the entire territory between the Mississippi River and the Rockies the most optimistic word of the weather bureau was "unsettled."

Bus Line Through Park to Get Trial

Effective next Wednesday, the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company will begin the operation of buses on the Squirrel Hill route through Schenley Park for a 60-day trial period, according to announcement by Public Works Director Edward G. Lang. The experiment will be made for the benefit of citizens and of students at Schenley High School, University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech.

Father, Two Babies Rescued From Fire

ROCHESTER, Pa., Jan. 11.—J. A. Allebach and sons, Kenneth and Theodore, were overcome with smoke and carried from their home, when clothing hanging before an open coal stove in their apartment ignited and set fire to the room. Allebach and the youngest son were asleep at the time, and Mrs. Allebach was at a nearby store. Firemen extinguished the blaze.

Hit by Motor Car, Suit Asks $35,000

Anna May Bostic, Rosslyn avenue, Swissvale, struck by a motor car owned by the F. G. Bishoff Company and permanently injured, has brought suit against the company through her mother, Catherine Bostic, for $35,000 damages. The accident occurred November 8 last, while the child was playing in Rosslyn avenue, near Patzer way.

Youth, 19, Crushed To Death in Plant

Carnegie Dill, 19, of Fleming Park, was crushed to death when caught between two steel buckets of a crane, at the plant of the Vulcan Detinning Company, on Neville Island, early today, according to the coroner's report.

CONTEST TIME EXTENDED

For the benefit of out-of-town contestants in the Sun-Telegraph Auto Show contest, the time limit for receipt of answers at the Sun-Telegraph has been extended to midnight of January 17.

As previously announced, contestants should hold their finished puzzles, mail them all in one group to the Sun-Telegraph Automobile Contest editor with the slogan after the contest is finished. Some contestants have overlooked this clause in the rules and have mailed their answers to the editor each day.

These answers cannot be accepted by the editor. However, it will be possible for those who have made this mistake to secure copies of the Sun-Telegraph in which the mailed puzzles appeared. They will thus be able to do the puzzles again and include them in the complete list to be mailed when the contest closes.

On the first sheet of paper will appear the name of the contestant, his address, and the slogan he thinks best describes the Automobile Show.

On the second page will appear the contestants name, and, under the title of the automobile found in each of the three puzzles, the mistakes in each of the three drawings. There will thus be three divisions of answers on this page.

Answers to each day's puzzles will be submitted in the same manner as on page two. There will be 11 sheets of paper, each with the contestants name. On 10 of these sheets will appear the answers to a different set of puzzles and the name of three automobiles. On the first sheet will appear only the contestants name, address, and slogan.

YOUTHS ADMIT MANY THEFTS

The looting of a dozen business establishments in Everson and Scottdale was cleared with the arrest of Walter Gosztyla, 19, of Everson, and Fred F. Koldys, 18, of Liscening, near Connellsville, detectives announced today.

The pair was arrested in a Second avenue rooming house on suspicion by Detectives Walter Monaghan and Thomas Morgan early yesterday. Gosztyla admitted they said, that he robbed a dozen stores in Everson and Scottdale, and implicated Koldys.

Gosztyla was taken into custody several hours after he robbed Miller's dry goods store, at Scottdale, of $165 in cash, detectives reported. He told detectives, they asserted, that he escaped from a policeman September 19, after being caught looting the Ryall Drug Store, at Everson. The youths were being held on suspicious person charges while local detectives communicated with police of Scottdale and Everson.

Walter Winchell
On Broadway

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.

Imagine

TAKE it from Fannie Brice, who vows that she heard it while in a Hollywood studio. They were making a picture about the Civil War when the head of the firm, a dialectician, ankled on the set. Spying the actor impersonating Gen. Grant, he growled: "I dun't vant dat man mit de beard in dis picture!"

"But," butted the director, "we've searched all over for someone who resembled Gen. Grant and he's the best likeness we could get!"

MERCILESS TRUTH

Observed on the wall of a speakeasy in the Fourflushing Forties: "All the world's a screen and men and women merely brayers."

SO WOULD WE

CARROLL CARROLL says he would like to know the difference between a good actor and a bad actor, how high is up; if it is true that show business is so bad on Broadway that one of the managers is making a critic pay his way in; why, the inventor of the typewriter didn't make the keyboard run in alphabetical order; and all the chorus girls in George White's "Scandals."

FAST THINKING

You've probably heard about the racket being worked on actors in Chicago by local racketeers. Charles Winninger, for instance, has been frightened out of coin, as have many other entertainers, according to the tales you hear on The Grandest Canyon. The legend is that if you don't kick in, you may be alive, but not kicking.

It remained for Helen Menken, however, to think as fast as the extortioner who called up and said: "Miss Menken, I am sending around $50 worth of tickets for our benefit show. Will you be good enough to help us?"

"Why, my dear!" cooed Miss Meniken, "if you had only called yesterday. I bought $100 worth from another man yesterday.

"Oh, yeah?" grunted the voice, who muttered something else about somebody stealing his idea, as he banged the receiver.

A "Show Boat" chorus boy, however, took it more seriously, and the first train for New York, but not until he had telephoned his company manager: "Will not be in for tonight's performance."

IN FEWER WORDS

LOOK out for the Broadway lad who tells you that all he wants is an even break. It's a 10 to 1 bet that he's looking for the best of it.

HE'S PUNNY THAT WAY

Jeff Carter says he can make up a sentence with the word "Welfare" like this: "Welfare cryin' out loud!"—and a sentence with the word "Physician" like this: "Well, well, well, physician my old pal, Jack!"

"Exquisite Afternoon Frock"

Pattern 1821

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

A frock that has all the feminine qualities to make a smart afternoon costume, is this model of silk crepe. The front panel, the raised line of the skirt flare and dip-in-back are new features of importance. A bit of dainty lace, for collar and cuffs, adds interest.

Design 1821 would be equally lovely if fashioned of sheer velvet, crepe de chine or satin. Black, wine, dahlia, brown bottle green and rust are outstanding shades for the coming spring season. Cream or ecru lace should be chosen.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 4⅝ yards of 40-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model. The pattern has ample and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size. A perfect fit is guaranteed.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipt of FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

The NEW WINTER FASHION BOOK is FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and order to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West 17th St., New York City.

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

WELL, JUDGE, YOU DON'T UNDERSTAND - I BORROWED $100,000 - I GAVE A MORTGAGE ON MY HOTEL AND WELL AND I SIGNED AN AGREEMENT TO WAIVE ALL COURT PROCEEDINGS AND THAT AT THE EXPIRATION OF THIS LOAN THEY COULD TAKE OVER MY HOTEL AND WELL - I WAS UP AGAINST IT, JUDGE, - I JUST HAD TO GET OUT!
THAT WAS JUST ABOUT THE DUMBEST AGREEMENT A MAN COULD ENTER INTO - STILL THE LAW PROVIDES FOR JUST SUCH PEOPLE AS YOU WHO DEAL WITHOUT COUNSEL - I COULD HAVE DRIVEN A BUS THROUGH THAT AGREEMENT - I COULD HAVE HELD UP THAT THING FOR AT LEAST A YEAR - YOU DON'T MIX YOUR OWN MEDICINE - WHY PRESCRIBE YOUR OWN LAW - ? - A MAN IS ONLY AS BIG AS HE THINKS HE IS BUT YOUR OPINION OF YOUR OWN ABILITY IS A RESPONSIBILITY THAT I'D HATE TO HAVE TO LIVE UP TO

INDEED? LET'S SIT DOWN RIGHT HERE. WHY SNEAK INTO A CORNER OF OUR OWN HOME TO TALK? NO SIR. NOT ME.
ALL RIGHT! ALL RIGHT JO, NOT SO LOUD. WELL AS I SAY HE'S VERY ABOVE-BOARD ABOUT HAVING MONEY. BUT DON'T FORGET THAT HE'S ALSO VERY HUMAN. VERY. HE PROVES THAT WHEN HE ADMITS HOW HAPPY HE IS ABOUT FINDING HIS RELATIVES.
HA! WAIT UNTIL HE SEES SOME OF THEM. ESPECIALLY THE LOWBROWS.
AND WAIT UNTIL THEY FIND OUT THAT A BUNGLE SUPPOSED TO HAVE MONEY IS IN TOWN. HA, THEY'LL MOB HIM!
MY WORD, I'M GLAD YOU SPOKE ABOUT THAT..... ON THE OTHER HAND I WISH YOU HADN'T SAID ANYTHING ABOUT IT UNTIL MORNING BECAUSE I FIGURED ON GETTING A REAL NIGHT'S SLEEP TONIGHT.....LET ME THINK?.....MY WORD! WELL I JUST WONT THINK ABOUT WHAT MIGHT HAPPEN UNTIL TOMORROW.

This Week's Lamar Offering Concerns Dumb Animals

(Lamar, Missouri, Democrat)

About 7:30, Wednesday evening, Nightwatch Smed Evilsizer stood in the court house yard and fired with a shot-gun north across the street, at a stray dog, that stood on the pavement, a few feet from the curb, on the north side of the square. There was a long agonizing wail from the dog, showing that the shot had gone home, but there was another sound from a man on the sidewalk.

The man was Selby Jones. He had been home to supper, lighted a cigar and started back to Coles' store.

Naturally Selby was pretty mad.

Smed felt very bad about the accident. He had looked along the sidewalk, near the dog, before he had fired and it looked as if nobody was near.

The Nightwatch insisted that Selby have Dr. Miller look at his neck. Dr. Miller picked out the shot which had burrowed quite deeply under the skin.

He said, yes, that was a fact.

"The Old Guard passes."

Herbert DuPuy, whose death is chronicled at the age of 74, was of "the Old Guard" of the steel industry having been, as a young man, one of the numerous "boys" associated with Andrew Carnegie, most of whom arose to industrial prominence almost equal to that of the steel master himself. Mr. DuPuy, a Philadelphian, was invited to come to Pittsburgh by Mr. Carnegie following his graduation from Lehigh as a metallurgical chemist in the late 'seventies.

Placed in the laboratory of Lucy Furnaces, he soon discovered that roll-scale, a waste, was rich in iron, and the discovery was turned to the profit of the company. It was not long before the young man, who had become allied through marriage with an old Pittsburgh family, that of the late Dr. David Hostetter, whose daughter Mrs. DuPuy is, became firmly established in the steel business by becoming associated with the erectors of a crucible steel plant in McKees Rocks.

From the date of this venture, 1881, until well into the present century, he expanded his activities to embrace coal, rubber, finance and real estate, both in Pittsburgh and New York, where he confined his operations almost exclusively to Broadway. Through a holding company he became one of the largest real estate holders in New York. At the time of his death he was the last of the original directors of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad and the oldest member of the board of the Farmers Deposit National Bank.

An athlete in his college days, and devoted to walking, he indulged in that exercise even in the later years of his life by habitually walking four miles from his home to his office, and took no little pride in his "record," 45 minutes, or a little more than 11 minutes to the mile. He spent much time in travel, during which he acquired many objects of art, some of which are in the familiar DuPuy collection occupying an entire room in the museum of Carnegie Institute.

Mr. DuPuy was one of the builders of Pittsburgh and an exemplary citizen whose life might well be taken as a guide by our youngermen.

It's Possible to Go Too Far

When You Go Too Far You Spoil Your Argument.

Anything in excess is bad, except brain work. You cannot go too far with THAT. But with a majority of us there is little DANGER in that direction.

And IN CRITCIZING OTHERS ESPECIALLY, great excess.

For instance, the editor of the Irish Republican which is, by the way, a curious combination of words, doesn't believe in smoking.

He does not say as he might: "Don't smoke to EXCESS, it's bad."

He does not say, as he should, that young girls and boys in their teens should not smoke, and that women should not smoke until past the age of having children, because nicotine in the blood does not help the unborn baby.

The editor of the Irish Presbyterian says SO MUCH not true that he spoils his argument entirely.

Here, as a sample of exaggerated statement, you may read what that editor says:

"The evil effects of tobacco are deep-seated and sure. Like all narcotics, its use has a deadening effect upon the moral sense, especially in young persons. The use of tobacco clogs the intellect, shatters the nerves, lessens the ambition, saps the brain, interferes with bodily development and the mental vigor of all growing boys. It tends to create a thirst for strong drink, and its excessive use has been known to cause nervous dyspepsia, heart disease, sore throat, cancer of the mouth, throat and stomach, nasal catarrh, insanity and imbecility, and to sap the foundations of manliness and virtue. Nothing will so surely destroy the sense of honor and make liars and thieves of boys and young men as the use of tobacco."

A dog CAN walk on his hind legs. But he stops as soon as possible and he comes down on all fours.

A man CAN think, but he stops soon.

When you smoke placidly you lift your chin up in the air to blow the smoke toward the ceiling. Thus your forehead is tilted backward. Men do not think with foreheads tilted back. They think with foreheads tilted forward toward the floor.

Perfection, of course, would be desirable.

Drinking nothing but water, eating only vegetables, going to bed at eight, getting up at four, never smoking, always working, perhaps we should be a better race of beings, although we should be uncomfortably like the ants. The sensible thing is to criticize MILDLY, and especially to stick to facts.

And, by the way, you can imagine what this Presbyterian editor would do to the tobacco smokers if he could.

You see what prohibitionists in the United States, who are doing exactly what they please, do to those that don't quite agree with them.

Defying the Lightning

The Urge to Dance.

It is almost impossible to pick up a journal of opinion without stumbling across a bitter, ill-natured quotation against jazz music. Dance rhythms, for some reason, stir up resentment, particularly among people whose hearts (and feet) no longer quicken to the impulse of spontaneity.

Dance cadence does not need to be defended, explained or made to appear to be something that it is not. The urge to dance is very old, and very universal, and very persistent in the human soul. And dance rhythms are a call from the dim past that will never be completely denied.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

A 12-Man Glee Club

"Bugs" Baer

In the case of George Burckhalter, a gleaner of the Carolina bottle orchards, the jury deliberated four hours and drank 49 bottles of domestic fermentation.

Blind justice was getting blinder at the rate of 12 bottles an hour. The forty-ninth bottle was either newly discovered evidence or it was a bonus for the foreman.

The slow rate of investigation is due to the jury system of South Carolina. All in favor of the conviction will wipe their mouths with the backs of the hands and vote a dignified and appreciative "Ah."

The latest method of compounding justice with thirsts will put the guerilla brewmasters on their contraband mettle.

They will either make their stuff out of the best bran, sugar and malt or they will be convicted.

With every crash of a bottle through a legal window you will have thorough warning that the jury is deliberating.

The sound of alcoholic snoring from the witness box will be evidence that the defense is resting on its case, which is now empty.

New clews will be registered as fast as they can be tapped.

When a jury stays out all night it will not be able to condemn the prisoner without convicting itself.

We are moving to South Carolina for the jury season. We used to dodge that duty before we knew that South Carolina will improve the dispensation of equity until even the lunch is free.

We would like to compete with 12 men who take four hours on 49 bottles. The mills of the gods guzzle too slow and we know that we can speed up production.

Nothing could be finer than to be in Carolina in the morning when the forty-ninth bottle is but a revolving memory and the prisoner is confessing his famous receipe so that the government of the people shall not perish from thirst.

We have thought the matter over carefully and we find that the culprit is guilty with extenuating evidence.

THE CONFIDENCE SHOW

By Herbert Kaufman

UNCLE SAM'S richest and most IMPORTANT nephew is paying his annual visit to Manhattan.

Lord knows how the old gentleman would manage to keep his enormous national family so comfortably housed and profitably employed, if it weren't for the AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY, which not only sustains the largest payroll in America, but largely decides whether railroads shall write their statements in red or black, steel mills and glass works meet dividend requirements, cement plants and paint factories expand or pull in horns, and outlying acreage remain cheap farm lands or become valuable home sites.

Without its omnivorous appetite for suburbs, textiles, hardware, metal sundries, machinery, copper, nickel and fresh highways, prosperity COULDN'T take eight billion dollar chinblows in the Stock Market and charge the loss to the SMALL CHANGE account.

Here's a single producer of wealth—AND JOBS—which regulates the fortunes of more enterprises than any other consumer of labor, capital and materials on earth.

CONSEQUENTLY, these yearly automobile shows must be regarded not merely as pre-exhibits of models and mechanical refinements, but celebrations of an economic achievement, by which every income is indirectly affected, and from which every last mother's son of us may snatch SOME spark to light a torch for wabbling self-assurance.

They regularly remind society that originality and horse sense are not forced to truckle for financial favors.

They compel us to remember that not a pioneer car-builder had the backing of a bank, the indorsement of Wall Street or any qualifying contact with the intricate problems of administration, sales-promotion and distribution.

THEY keep recalling the incredible adaptation of homely wits to an emergency phase of progress for which university training, commercial experience and veteran management furnished no contributing intelligence.

They increasingly EMPHASIZE the belated resourcefulness of the half-schooled, obscure and penniless Henry Ford, and encourage thousands of middle aged wage earners ALSO to believe that it's never too late to win with the RIGHT IDEA.

They carry us back to the mechanics' benches where the Fisher boys and Walter Chrysler, respectively, laid foundations, IN PAY ENVELOPES, for square miles of bodybuilding and motor works.

They recurrently spank the conceit of money-masters, STILL choking at thought of the expensive dish of crow this little band of independents finally made them eat at the price of DIAMOND-STUFFED PEACOCKS.

THEY rebuke every cynical force seeking to undermine faith in the opportunities which the United States have never ceased to reserve for the PRACTICAL visionary.

These automobile shows come as evangels of optimism, to REAFFIRM the industry's conviction that there are no saturation points in sight for ACTUAL necessities, HOWEVER EXPENSIVE: to shame hesitation with bold budgets and wider-spread advertising: and to teach fellow business the benefits of mass production, simplified practice and constructive dissatisfaction with all methods and scores.

Detroit has AGAIN bet its stack that the country will keep GOING—keep GROWING—and keep SPENDING.

So long as the expert pulse-feelers yonder forecast the situation as healthy, and BACK their diagnosis with a "BIGGER and BETTER" program, stock-ticker opinions and statistical alarmists are due to prove INCOMPETENT judges of 1930 balance sheets.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I READ this lately—"FEELINGS ARE TERRIBLE THINGS TO PUT AT THE HELM IN LIFE."

Do you see the picture behind those words? A ship—seaworthy in itself — but with a drunken pilot at the wheel. Darkness about, a rising storm and waves that leap like snarling wolves. With every gust, with every surge the doomed ship staggers and veers—for reason has fled from the crazy eyes of the man who stands on the bridge.

That means DRUGS at the helm of your life—

Self-generated secretions, poured into your blood stream by your own glands, but as truly drugs, nevertheless, as the strychnine, arsenic, cyanide and morphine on the chemist's shelf.

"But I thought feelings came from the brain," you say.

That is what everyone believed until recently. Now we know that feelings have little to do with the brain.

You don't get excited or mad or frightened or in love in your brain. Your brain is like a switchboard. Various impressions press on that switchboard through your sense of sight, touch, hearing, smelling and tasting. But your FEELING does not happen in your brain . . . it happens in various glands scattered through your body.

When the impressions have "plugged in" on that switchboard, and the brain has telephoned its message to your body along the sensitive wires of the nerves, the glands get busy. They are always busy, but now they get BUSIER. Certain glands may be affected by one message, certain by another. The adrenal gland, for instance, which is situated near your kidneys, has much to do with your feelings of excitement. As soon as the brain telephones DANGER or HATE or ANGER the adrenal begins to shoot an extra amount of its secretions . . . called hormones . . . into the blood stream. And what happens next depends on you.

If your life is run by FEELINGS, you are then at the mercy of HYSTERICAL HORMONES. You may blow up and pull a scene at the office. You may stage a fight with the wife. You may even kill. HORMONES make HOMICIDE.

But, if your life is run by intelligence, you can control this sudden riot in your blood. You can steer yourself through to safety.

Feelings rule the lives of brutes, savages and children. They also rule the lives of many who consider themselves intelligent adults . . . but they're not. No one who is really grown up allows his life to be ruled by feelings. No one who is really civilized can put feelings at the helm. For civilization doesn't last five seconds if feelings run amuck.

What's at the helm in YOUR life?

The chemistry of a brute—

(Copyright, 1930, King Features Syn., Inc.)

Isn't It So?

Text for Today God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea.—Psalms xlvi:1, 2.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

(To each of these less exciting patterns of the mechanisms we call animals, we will devote only a section or a part of a section here.)

Sec. 2. THE MOLLUSCS.

MOLLUSCS are creatures nearly all of which possess shells —double (bivalve) shells like those of oysters, clams and cockles, single hollow shells like those of snails, shells embedded in the body-wall like the "bone" of a cuttlefish.

Except for these shells they are soft-bodied, without any skeleton. They are not segmented as arthropods are, but their blood is colored pale blue with haemocyanin, like the blood of a crustacean.

In the great majority of cases (the shell of the bivalves being a notable exception) their muscles do not form accurately defined bands playing on jointed skeletal levers, like the voluntary muscles of a vertebrate or an arthropod; their locomotor apparatus consists generally of an apparently disorderly tangled mass of muscle-fibres, the socalled "foot," an arrangement which leads to plasticity rather than precision.

H. G. Wells

There are five classes of molluscs, of which only three, the bivalves, the snails and slugs, and the octopuses and cuttlefish are of sufficient importance to mention here.

The bivalves, or Lamellibranchia, are all aquatic and most of them marine. They lie between two hard shells which are hinged together along one side; by means of powerful muscles the shells can be pulled together to enclose the animal completely when any danger threatens.

Some of these animals, like the fresh-water mussel, creep sluggishly about by means of the lobe of muscular tissue, the "foot," which they protrude from the shell.

Some, like the heavy-shelled oyster, or the common blue mussel of our shores, that attaches itself firmly to rocks by means of a tuft of adhesive threads, do not move about at all.

Some, like the cockle, which can jump by means of a spring-like action of its "foot," or the scallop that swims by rhythmically opening and closing its shell-flaps, are suprisingly active creatures.

The scallop is a marine butterfly; to guide it in the long flights which it takes it is provided with a row of glistening eyes just inside the rim of each shell.

To ourselves the bivalves are important for three chief reasons; firstly because most of them are good to eat, secondly because the oyster makes pearls, and thirdly because some members of the class bore holes in wood or rock and can do extensive damage in this way to piles, breakwaters, wooden ships and the like.

The bivalves live by passing a continual current of water through the shell, a current from which they extract oxygen and the minute particles of organic matter upon which they feed and into which they shed their waste products.

On opening a mussel, the most obvious structures that present themselves are the so-called "gills," the engines which keep this slow current of water in motion.

The "gills" are not primarily breathing organs at all; they are elaborate filters, like the pharynx of Amphioxus or a sea-squirt, through which water is worked by means of cilia, and which collect suspended particles of food and pass them down to the mouth.

Among most important points in the anatomy of these creatures, perhaps their most bizarre feature, in vivid contrast to the scheme of the two phyla previously studied, is the fact that the intestine runs actually through the ventricle of the heart.

The second class of molluscs, the Gastropoda, is also the largest; it includes the terrestrial snails and slugs and the whelks and winkles of the sea.

There are about 6,000 terrestrial and 10,000 aquatic gastropod species living today, most of the latter being marine.

With them the "foot" is a flat muscular sole to the body lump—hence the name of the class, from the Greek for stomach and foot, they go on their stomachs—and most of them bear on their back a spirally-coiled shell into which they can retire when they choose.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Only a Broadway could have spawned a Larry Fay, who is one of the glittering alley's best known characters. He symbolizes its flinty heart as well as its mawkish sentimentality—the 10-minute egg who is so often as soft as putty.

Fay is in his early thirties, with an extremely youthful face and a shock of hair brushed into a high school boy side part. His smile has the dazzle of a sunlit ripple and his eyes twinkle a Caledonian mirth. Yet his voice is harsh and just a trifle sinister.

Like so many of his kind, his origin is clouded. Some say he was hived in the East Side tenements and others say he grew up on the Hell's Kitchen's sidewalks where the cops walked in pairs. Anyway it is known he began driving his own taxi for the stars at the old Biograph studio.

From this, a born organizer, he built a fleet of taxicabs which he might have sold for $1,500,000 if the prospective purchasers had not snubbed Fay's pal in the deal. He later sold out for just half that amount—his gush of loyalty costing him $750,000.

It was Fay who really discovered Texas Guinan. She was in the theatrical backwaters, outmoded in vaudeville and movies, when he opened his celebrated El Fay club and established her as a hostess who would enrich the world with "Hello, Sucker!" and "give this little girl a hand!"

The place until its final padlocking became one of the most talked about cabarets in the world and furnished Fay with a $10,000-a-week income for years. He tried to carry the idea to Miami and hit the rocks. The most recent news of him was his so-called $80,000-a-year "milk racket."

He was accused of using gang methods in demanding $4,000 annually from 200 dairymen for "protection." Coincidentally with that was the sob sister epic of his spending thousands on the fatally stricken Ziegfeld beauty, Myrna Darby—a girl Fay had seen but once in his life.

Members of the real 18-karat society in New York are said to be avoiding exclusive restaurants because of the exploitation didoes of what is known as "cafe society." Many such showoffs do bear the names of illustrious families but are not a part of the creme de la creme. They are the conspicuous who indorse cigarets, hand lotions and stand for "ghost written" stories bearing their names in the magazines.

The north wing of the stately and somber Whitelaw Reid mansion at Madison avenue and Fifty-first street is dark, while the south wing is tipped with light these winter nights. It is about the only residence in town to retain an expensive courtyard dotted with a fountain. The closing of one wing is due to that great housekeeping bugaboo—the servant problem. Faithful old servitors are reported to have grown too feeble to trudge the block-long halls from one wing to another. And new servants, hep to modern rights and willing to die to defend them, refuse to trot an entire block just to see who is yanking the front bell.

* * *

Living a few blocks from the Reid home for many years, it has always incited a curious attraction. Like a grandfather's clock, it is aloof and magnificently gloomy. I have never seen anyone arrive at or depart from its entrance gate. * * *

But the gloomiest residential pile of all continues to be the faded old Wendell mansion on Fifth avenue, with its flapping shutters and curtainless windows. It stands like some forgotten scarecrow in a beautiful garden.

* * *

Twice in as many weeks, two furtive fellows have waylaid me in a dark side street and, nodding at a nearby truck with a knowing wink, indicated they could sell me some stolen woolens cheap. It is one of the oldest Rube-baiting rackets in town. And slows up my growing notion I was becoming a city chap. * * *

"Your frequent references to high-toned dishes," writes Tommy G., "are amusing. I happen to know you were brought up on sow belly, turnip greens and blackstrap molasses."

Drop in some time and watch me toy with a slice of Lady Baltimore cake—you big stiff.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

ARE you not surprised and at times displeased with yourself because of the sort of amusement which most interests you? Are you not impressed with the fact that you are not half grown up?

Unless you have something that meets your idea of a good time you are disgruntled.

Other people of your age appear to have a good time in a complacent sort of way, but you crave a bit of excitement with it.

Is it that you have not progressed with your age?

You seem not to have advanced beyond the days of your younger years.

You carry to excess the theory that to remain young you must have young thoughts and youthful entertainment.

In what class do you suppose they place you?

They feel you lack poise and have ceased to grow mentally.
